Library of Congress Trust Fund Board

An act of Congress, approved March 3, 1925, as amended, created the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board, a quasi-corporation with perpetual succession and all the usual powers of a trustee, including the power to "invest, reinvest, or retain investments" and, specifically, the authority "to accept, receive, hold, and administer such gifts, bequests, or devises of property for the benefit of, or in connection with, the Library, its collections, or its services, as may be approved by the Board and by the Joint Committee on the Library" (U S C 2 154-163)

A notable provision of the act (Section 2, last paragraph) permits endowment funds, up to a total limit of $5,000,000, to be treated as a perpetual loan to the United States Treasury, at an assured interest of four percent per annum

MEMBERS OF THE BOARD

SIR: I have the honor to submit, as required by law, a report of the affair of the Library of Congress, including the copyright business, for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955. The report consists of the material herewith presented and a supplement thereto published, for the convenience of the public, under the title Quarterly Journal of Current Acquisitions. The four issues of the supplement covering the year ending June 30, 1955, are submitted herewith, as is a copy of the annual report of the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board

Introduction

Herbert Putnam, 1861–1955

A great man who symbolized an entire era for the Library of Congress died on August 14, 1955. On that day, Herbert Putnam, Librarian Emeritus, succumbed to a coronary thrombosis at Woods Hole, Massachusetts, following a fall two weeks earlier in which he had fractured his hip.

The chronicler of Library history would say that the end of that era came when Dr Putnam retired in 1939 from the position of Librarian of Congress, which he had held for 40 glittering years. But, so long as the slight, increasingly frail figure was seen in the halls, his fleeting smile answered your "Good morning, Dr Putnam," and the keenness of his mind and wit—unblunted to the end—lent edge to his tongue, it was impossible to think of Dr Putnam, already an institution, as one with history.

The Library of Congress, nearly a century old when Dr Putnam assumed its leadership, came of age under his guidance. So much has already been written of his contributions to it and to the larger worlds of librarianship and scholarship that it is, in a way, superfluous to add a few more words, especially when such tributes exist as David C. Mearns' "Herbert Putnam Librarian of the United States," which was published in the January 1955 issue of D C Libraries. But Dr Putnam, who always declined to reminisce or to write his memoirs, declared that his annual reports as Librarian of Congress contained everything that was worth preserving. Those reports do speak for themselves and for their creator, but this annual report must speak, however inadequately, for us, his successors. Although he could resist the temptation of a backward glance, we cannot.

Fortunately for the library world, the call to books proved stronger than the call to law, which Herbert Putnam studied after his graduation from Harvard College. In quick succession he demonstrated his extraordinary administrative talents at the Minneapolis Athenaeum, the Minneapolis Public Library, and the Boston Public Library. Hence it was not surprising that, when the separate building for the Library of Congress was nearing completion in 1896, he should be among those consulted by the Joint Committee on the Library as to what the role of the new Library should be. His colleagues, the librarians of the country, also recognized his leadership in the profession, and, through the American Library Association, strongly urged his appointment as Librarian of Congress, when, less than 3 years later, that position became vacant. On April 5, 1899, President McKinley gave him a recess appointment, and on December 12 of the same year he was confirmed in office by the Senate of the United States.

He found the Library of Congress a mass of books, imperfectly cataloged and classified only according to Thomas Jefferson's adaptation of Francis Bacon's organization of knowledge, as modified by Ainsworth Spofford. He reserved for himself 25 years to put this house in order. With imagination and boldness—and with the unfailing support of Congress—he accomplished this in much less than a quarter of a century, improving and extending the Library's services to Congress, other libraries, and scholars.

Never posing as a technician, Dr Putnam considered that his role was to obtain for his staff the best qualified experts he could attract and to foster their efforts in every way he could. His, however, was the directing genius. Before long cataloging practices had been standardized, and another dream of the library world was realized when he began the printing of the Library's catalog cards for distribution to other libraries throughout the country. A systematic scheme of classification appropriate for the Library's large collections of research materials was developed, and it is now used by many other institutions. An interlibrary loan system, through which the national resources of the Library of Congress could be made available to communities all over the United States, was inaugurated. A special Legislative Reference Service was organized. And, of particular importance in increasing the stature of the Library as a scholarly institution, the several divisions having custody of special materials, such as manuscripts, maps, and music, were greatly developed.

At the end of that quarter century which Dr Putnam claimed for himself came what he probably regarded as his greatest achievement—realized, as so many of his endeavors were, with the cooperation of Congress—the passage in 1925 of the act creating the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board. This act, occasioned by the gifts of Mrs Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge for the establishment of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library of Congress and the construction of the Coolidge Auditorium, enabled the Board to accept and the Library to utilize funds from private sources. Thus, foundations designed to sponsor the commissioning of musical compositions, the collection of musical manuscripts, and the presentation of chamber-music concerts in the Library and elsewhere came into being, the enrichment of many other collections was made possible; additional scholars of high repute were attracted to the staff, and the development of such important bibliographic tools as the National Union Catalog, which now contains information about the holdings of some 700 North American libraries, was effected.

The collections, which amounted to less than a million volumes when Dr Putnam took office, grew under his guidance to 5,500,000 books and pamphlets. Mere size is no index to distinction, but many of the collections, especially of American manuscripts, music (including folk-music), maps, fine prints, rare books, Hispanica, Orientalia, Hebraica, and Slavica, became the outstanding ones in the United States, some without peer anywhere. The specialists he gathered together interpreted these collections by advising research workers, and texts, calendars, guides, and bibliographies in large numbers were published. The Library of Congress became not only the libraries' library but the recourse of an unending line of scholars. In short, Dr Putnam made of the Library of Congress one of the foremost libraries of the world, a library, as he put it, "universal in scope, national in service."

His own service to librarianship, exemplified by his whole career, was recognized by the American Library Association, which twice elected him president, and he also served the ALA from 1917 to 1919 by directing its Library War Service for U S troops. By establishing strong ties with other great libraries of the world, he spread the influence of the Library of Congress abroad. And he modestly received the many honors accorded him at home and abroad as tributes to the institution he headed.

A special position for Dr Putnam, that of Librarian Emeritus, was created by an act of Congress signed on June 21, 1938. He took this post on October 1, 1939, after serving more than four decades as Librarian of Congress.

On the fortieth anniversary of his taking office, April 5, 1939, he was honored by members of the Round Table—a luncheon group of men of letters presided over by Dr. Putnam—and by colleagues on the Library staff. In responding to their addresses, Dr. Putnam spoke of his relationship to the Library of Congress. "Whatever of himself has gone into it, it is now an independent entity, with a personality quite distinct from his, vastly superior, and enduring, as his cannot be. That was what he was working for. In proportion as he has succeeded, he is content to be forgotten." But forgotten Dr. Putnam will never be, as long as the Library of Congress endures as an institution.

Major Developments of the Year

Lawrence Quincy Mumford, Director of the Cleveland Public Library, who had been nominated by President Eisenhower on April 22, 1954, and confirmed by the Senate on July 29, took office on September 1 as the eleventh Librarian of Congress. The Honorable Harold H. Burton, Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, administered the oath and Verner W. Clapp, Chief Assistant Librarian, who had been Acting Librarian of Congress for more than a year, presided over the brief ceremony. It took place in the Whittall Pavilion before an invited assembly of representatives of the Joint Committee on the Library and of library associations, librarians and heads of Federal agencies, Library officials, and personal friends of Mr. and Mrs. Mumford, and it was followed by an informal reception in the north courtyard garden.

For the new Librarian and his officers the year was one of stocktaking, of reviewing resources and activities. To assure himself that the budget, accounting, and disbursing operations of the Library were on a sound basis, Mr. Mumford requested the Acting Comptroller General to survey the Library's practices in these fields. They were reported, on October 4, 1954, to be generally "conducted efficiently and economically." However, some recommendations for improvements, which have been put into effect or are under study, were made.

The Civil Service Commission reviewed two aspects of the Library's administration of personnel matters. A survey of the Library's position classification program was made during the first 2 months of the fiscal year and a report, stating that there "is every indication that the program is being administered conscientiously," was made to the Librarian on October 26, 1954. The Commission also examined the execution of Library procedures for carrying out the provisions of the President's Executive Order No. 10450 relating to loyalty and security, which, by authorization of the Joint Committee on the Library, is applied to the Library. Some procedural differences, arising out of the fact that the Library is in the legislative rather than the executive branch, were noted, but this review and the special attention given the subject by Mr. Mumford gave assurance that the loyalty-security program has been carefully and diligently handled.

Since Appropriations Committees have on more than one occasion expressed concern lest the Library find itself faced with a catastrophic reduction-in-force when funds now being transferred from other Government agencies shall no longer be available, much consideration was given to this complicated problem. Responsibility for the conduct of certain large-scale bibliographic projects has been accepted because they are an essential cog in the machinery of national security and because the Library can, with its resources and bibliographic know-how, undoubtedly conduct them more economically than other agencies. Offers of new long-term contracts, however, have been rejected, and the granting of permanent status to Library employees who are paid from these transferred funds, or from gift funds of temporary availability, has been discontinued.

Examination of operations did not stop with the working-fund projects. The functions of every division in the Library are being reviewed, with the aim of determining whether there is duplication of effort and whether there are unnecessary activities. This evaluation will take some time. It is related to, although separate from, the task with which the House Committee on Appropriations in its report of May 19, 1954, charged the new Librarian—the codification and completion of legislation affecting the Library of Congress. This is an enormous undertaking, for the Library has no organic act and in the 155 years of its existence a considerable body of legislative provisions has accumulated. As a first step in carrying out the Committee's directive, these provisions have been brought together and the studies necessary for the completion of the codification are in progress.

No major reorganization took place during the year. The House Appropriations Committee in its report on the Library's appropriations for fiscal 1954 had requested that consideration be given to transferring the Books for the Blind program to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Because of Luther H. Evans' resignation as Librarian in July 1953 the matter was deferred until the appointment of his successor, although discussions with HEW did take place. After Mr. Mumford's appointment these discussions were renewed and on April 21, 1955, he submitted his recommendation to the Joint Committee on the Library, stating that since the activity is essentially a library program and since the Library of Congress has the techniques, the facilities, and long-standing effective relationships with the agencies that carry out the program in the States it should not be transferred. On June 6, Representative Omar Burleson of Texas, Chairman of the Joint Committee, wrote to Mr. Mumford that the Committee had endorsed his recommendation. Shortly after the end of the fiscal year under review, the Appropriations Committees of both Houses concurred by providing funds for continuing this activity in the Library in fiscal 1956.

Practically all the efforts of a library—the creation of an effective organization, the maintenance of a competent corps of personnel, and the acquisition and organization of needed materials—are directed toward one end: service to its public. Service to Congress, which stands first among the several groups served by the Library of Congress, increased during the year, at least in quantity. Another all-time high in the amount of reference and research work done for Members and Committees was recorded; nearly 76,000 inquiries were answered as compared with 69,000 in fiscal 1954. Reference services to other Government agencies, other libraries, scholars, and the public also increased. In all, the Library had 751,000 readers as compared with 681,500 last year, and they used about 2,168,000 volumes and other items in the buildings. In addition, nearly 265,000 items, including nearly 68,000 books for the blind, were lent for use outside the Library. Through the national program for the blind, the Library of Congress and 27 other libraries lent more than 1,300,000 talking books and books in raised type, such as Braille, to more than 52,300 blind persons in the United States and its Territories and Insular Possessions.

Information was also furnished through correspondence, through the publication of bibliographies and other guides to the collections, and through the presentation of interpretive programs, such as exhibits, concerts, readings, and lectures, many of which are made possible through gift funds. Among the notable publications of the year were catalogs of materials in the Library relating to Walt Whitman and of the Hans Christian Andersen Collection presented by Mr. and Mrs. Jean Hersholt. Both these literary figures were the subjects of extensive exhibits and a reading and four lectures celebrated the centennial of the publication of Whitman's Leaves of Grass. Historians, especially, welcomed the publication of the British Manuscripts Project: a Checklist of the Microfilms Prepared in England and Wales for the American Council of Learned Societies, 1941-1945, which constitutes a guide to more than 15,000 significant manuscripts that were filmed as a security measure during World War II under ACLS and Library sponsorship. Church and State Behind the Iron Curtain, published at no cost to the Government, was an important study made in the Law Library.

The "weightiest" publication prepared during the year was the 20-volume cumulation of the Library of Congress Catalog—Books Subjects, 1950-1954. It consisted of 31 $\frac{1}{10}$ tons of copy made up of a million

3 x 5 printed catalog cards, with added headings and cross-references, mounted on cardboard for photo-offset reproduction. When published, late in 1955, this catalog will provide a useful subject guide to a large portion of the world's output of significant publications of the period covered—some 300,000 books, pamphlets, and periodicals in almost all languages in the Roman, Greek, Hebrew, and Cyrillic alphabets, including a few in transliterated Hindi and Gujarati. It is being published by a private firm at no cost to the Government.

Plans for expanding the Library's Catalog—Books Authors, now chiefly a record of its own holdings, into a current author catalog of books acquired by major North American libraries were near realization as the year ended. Such a catalog would represent the most comprehensive current bibliographical service ever developed and would broaden the horizons of American librarianship as much as did the inauguration of the distribution of the Library's catalog cards more than half a century ago.

It was 1901 when Dr. Putnam made his far-reaching decision to make the results of the Library's expert cataloging available to the libraries of the nation by printing and selling the Library's catalog cards at a nominal cost, thus enabling other libraries to reduce their cataloging costs. The first year the card-distribution service was operated, $3,785 in earned receipts was turned over to the United States Treasury. In the fiscal year under review, an all-time record was set: more than 23,450,000 cards were sold and the receipts deposited in the Treasury from the sale of cards, catalogs in book form, and other technical publications amounted to $1,168,361.

Another of the Library's self-sustaining activities—the Copyright Office—set an all-time record during the year. Net registration fees, which go into the Treasury, amounted to $881,017—the largest sum in the Office's history. Registrations themselves, chiefly for books, periodicals, and music, rose from 222,665 in fiscal 1954 to 224,732 in fiscal 1955 and the value of the deposited materials—from which the Library draws for its permanent collections—amounted to about $375,000.

Significant as these figures are, the most important development in the field of copyright was the assurance, which came late in the fiscal year, that the Universal Copyright Convention would soon come into effect. Under the terms of the Convention, it was to come into force 3 months after its ratification by 12 countries, 4 of which were not members of the Berne Copyright Union. The 12th country deposited its instrument of ratification with the United Nations Educational, Scientific and Cultural Organization on June 12, 1955.

Participation by the United States was assured when Congress amended the copyright law to bring it into harmony with the Universal Copyright Convention and President Eisenhower signed the legislation (H. R. 6616) on August 31, 1954. (The Convention itself had been ratified by the Senate on June 25, 1954.) On November 5 at the White House, in the presence of representatives of the many groups in this country that had labored to make this UNESCO-sponsored agreement a reality, the President signed the U. S. instrument of ratification. Thus, for the first time, the United States adhered to a multipartite copyright agreement outside the Western Hemisphere. When the Convention goes into effect on September 16, 1955, not only will the maze of technicalities be simplified but authors, composers, publishers, and other creators of literary property in this country will be assured of the same protection in each of the countries adhering to the Universal Copyright Convention that those countries accord their own nationals.

By the end of the fiscal year 1955 the Library's collections had grown to more than 34,359,000 items. Among them were some 10,513,000 volumes and pamphlets, 151,600 bound volumes of newspapers, 14,578,000 manuscripts, 2,362,500 maps and views, 2,041,000 volumes and pieces of music, 2,619,700 photographic items, 583,000 fine prints, 459,000 phonograph recordings, and many other materials.

Even a library "universal in scope, national in service," faced as it is with the seemingly endless proliferation of the record of man's thoughts and deeds, cannot expect to collect everything. In an effort to insure the acquisition of necessary materials but to place as precisely as possible limitations on collecting, a detailed and systematic review was begun during the year of the Library's acquisitions policies. This survey, when completed, will result in a redefinition of policies in the light of the Library's responsibilities and of its physical and financial resources.

Undeniably, the reduction in force occasioned by a serious cut in appropriations for the Library for fiscal 1955 had demoralizing and disruptive effects. They had largely worn off by the time the new Librarian took office, however, and he could scarcely have asked for a staff more industrious and more devoted to service than he has had.

During the year the Director of Personnel resigned to enter private business and he was succeeded by Stephen Gould, former Director of Personnel in the Federal Civil Defense Administration. Solon J. Buck, Assistant Librarian since 1951, retired on August 31, 1954. He came to the Library in June 1948 to serve as Chief of the Manuscripts Division and holder of the Chair of American History, a post traditionally held by distinguished historians. Dr. Buck had already had an outstanding career as teacher, historian, and administrator of historical materials before he joined the staff of the National Archives in 1935. In 1941 he was named by the President to be Archivist of the United States, the position he held until he came to the Library, where one of his most important contributions was the institution of the practice of registering manuscript groups, a method of bringing under preliminary control the Library's rich collections of recent years.

Two vacancies on the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board were filled during the year. Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer of Washington, whose term on the board expired on March 9, 1955, was reappointed, and Benjamin Mosby McKelway, editor of the Washington Evening and Sunday Star, was appointed to fill the vacancy left by the death of Adolph C. Miller, Esq., of Washington, who died on February 11, 1953. A summary of the Board's annual report constitutes appendix I of this Report.

Because the Library of Congress so often benefits from the cooperation of other libraries, it was especially gratifying to be able to keep a representative, Edgar Breitenbach, in Berlin for a year and a half to help in planning the new American Memorial Library, or Berlin Central Library as it is also called, and to assist in the inauguration of services after it was opened. Grants from the American Council on Education and from the Ford Foundation made this possible, and after December 1954, when these funds were exhausted, Dr. Breitenbach remained for another 6 months through an arrangement with the Office of the High Commissioner for Germany.

The gift of the American people to the people of Berlin, the Berlin Central Library was dedicated on September 17, 1954. The Librarian took part in the ceremonies as the representative of the Library of Congress and of the American Library Association, of which he was president in 1954-55. The library's doors were opened to the public at noon on September 20. Dr. Breitenbach described the scene:

"Long before twelve, crowds gathered outside, a real cross-section of Berlin. The first one in was a small boy of about nine, who made a determined rush to the children's department. . . . An hour later we had to close the doors temporarily, as the reading room had filled up to such an extent that the staff could no longer cope. The queues for the readers' cards stretched halfway through the reading room. Sixteen hundred were registered the first day and fourteen hundred the second. Some three thousand books were checked out the first day, which is a record figure in German library history."

Thus the people of Berlin seemed to confirm their agreement with the words spoken at the dedication of their library: "As long as we preserve freedom of access to information, we need not fear for the democratic life of a city or a nation."

The foregoing brief summary does little more than touch on some of the year's activities. The chapters and statistical appendixes that follow this introduction describe the work of the Library in more detail. For the new Librarian it was a year of orientation—of dealing with the day-to-day aspects of administration, identifying long-range problems, and getting acquainted with the capacities of a skilled and versatile staff. The experience gained, the lessons learned, during this year of exploration will be applied in the coming year toward making the Library an increasingly effective instrument in the service of Congress, other Government agencies, and the people of the United States.

The Acquisition of Materials

THE FISCAL year 1955 saw no diminution in the tremendous outpouring of the world's printing presses or in the receipt of materials by the Library of Congress. On the contrary, more materials came in than in the previous fiscal year—some 5,340,600 items, including unbound newspaper issues, as compared with 4,588,000 in 1954. A detailed breakdown of these receipts is contained in section A of appendix II.

Despite the Library's obligation to collect comprehensively in the national interest, increasing efforts are being made to exercise selectivity in acquiring materials. To this end, a systematic examination and re-statement of acquisitions policies was begun during the year. And only a little more than a fifth of the materials that flowed into the Library through gift, purchase, exchange, official deposit, and the like, or 1,206,000 items, were chosen for addition to the permanent collections. Manuscripts, which of recent years have led all other categories of materials acquired, ran a poor third (295,700 pieces) to photographic items (381,700), among which was the historic Brady-Handy Collection, and to volumes and pamphlets (357,700). Further statistics on additions to the collections during the year and the total contents of the Library at the close of the fiscal year are contained in section B of appendix II. Section C of the same appendix indicates, as an example, the scope of the Library's Orientalia collections.

The operation of the acquisitions machinery is primarily the responsibility of the Processing Department, but area and subject specialists in the Law Library and the Reference Department are spending an increasing amount of time on acquisitions work. This is as it should be, for they are the ones who best know the literature, the present strength and weaknesses of the collections, and the needs of those who use the Library. A statistical analysis of acquisitions work done in all three departments is contained in sections D, E, and F of appendix II.

The emphasis during recent years on the acquisition of all types of materials from the Slavic and East European areas, for example, has benefited from the participation of the staff of the Slavic and East European Division in almost every aspect of a broad complex—developing bibliographic tools for acquisitions, recommending exchange and dealer connections and other acquisitions channels, scanning national bibliographies and dealers' catalogs, advising on selection, and indicating processing priorities. During the past year such activities constituted 23 percent of the division's workload. The solicitation of manuscript collections is a continuing responsibility of the Manuscripts Division, and the Prints and Photographs Division, the Music Division, and the Hispanic Foundation also have important acquisitions responsibilities by virtue of their management of gift or trust funds designed to enhance the Library's collections in their respective fields.

When possible, the Library's specialists visit the areas of their particular responsibility to improve acquisitions arrangements. During a trip to Japan, Korea, Formosa, and Hong Kong in the past year, Edwin G. Beal, Chief of the Japanese Section of the Orientalia Division, made purchasing arrangements for Far Eastern publications, established new exchange relationships, and placed numerous subscriptions to periodicals not hitherto received. Vladimir Gsovski, Chief of the Foreign Law Section of the Law Library, attended the International Congress of Jurists in Athens in May 1955 and purchased legal publications in Paris, Rome, and other centers. Mrs. Helen L. Clagett, Chief of the Latin American Law Section of the Law Library, traveled to Mexico City to examine an important collection that had been offered to the Library, and her recommendations resulted in the purchase of a large number of valuable items.

The Department of State, and especially its Acquisition and Distribution Division, continued to assist the Library in acquiring publications from many areas of the globe by making available its overseas information and procurement facilities. As a result, the receipt of monographic publications from the U. S. S. R. was more than doubled, and acquisitions arrangements in Guatemala, Japan, India, and Pakistan were strengthened.

Purchases

Although the 1955 appropriations for the increase of the Library's collections were $20,000 less than in fiscal 1954, some 538,700 items were purchased as compared with 486,200 in the previous year. The various gift and appropriated funds used for purchases are shown in section A of appendix II.

Several important improvements in purchasing arrangements were made during the year. The so-called blanket orders were stated in more specific terms than in the past and improved selection has been effected as a result. A system for rating bookdealers was also initiated which should make possible the accurate assessment of an individual firm's performance. Plans were developed for placing subscriptions to American periodicals on a three- or four-year basis rather than on an annual basis; this, if put into effect, will mean lower subscription rates and will obviate the necessity for yearly payments, with consequent savings in paper work. Punched-card controls of continuation orders, instituted at the end of fiscal 1954, have been further improved to provide monthly reports on subscriptions and listings of individual titles.

Exchanges

More than 3,600,000 pieces were received through domestic and foreign exchange, transfer, and official deposit. About half of them came from Federal agencies and other governmental units, many of these items were surplus to the Library's needs, so they in turn were disposed of by exchange, donation to educational institutions, or sale either as publications or as waste paper. From the copyright deposits 358,686 items were transferred, all of which were added to the Library's collections.

Only one new official exchange agreement was made. The United States and the Federal Republic of Germany agreed that on behalf of the United States publications would be received by the Library of Congress and on behalf of Western Germany by the Federal Office for the International Exchange of Official Publications at Marburg. Other exchange activities included the transfer, via the United States Information Agency, of the final installment of a collection of more than 700 titles, representing many aspects of American culture, to the Institute of North American Studies at the University of Coimbra in Portugal. This collection was sent in exchange for publications presented to the Library by the Portuguese Government following its exhibition of Portuguese books at the First International Colloquium on Luso-Brazilian Studies, which was held at the Library of Congress in October 1950. During the year Lewis C. Coffin, Assistant Director of the Processing Department, was appointed to serve as the Library's representative on the Interdepartmental Committee on International Exchanges, which is concerned with formulating governmental policy on the international exchange of publications.

Gifts

The generosity of many donors has continued to enrich the Library's resources. Only a part of the 1,163,700 items received were added to the collections, and only a few of those can be mentioned here. Lessing J. Rosenwald added to the Rosenwald Collection such incunabula as Justinian's Institutiones of 1468, the Vérard Book of Hours of 1490, and the Lübeck Bible of 1494. Alfred Whitall Stern completed the transfer of his notable collection of Lincoliana, which was deposited in the Library in 1950, and Mr. and Mrs. Jean Hersholt augmented the Hans Christian Andersen Collection that they have presented to the Library in the last few years. Arthur A. Houghton, Jr., made possible the purchase of a copy of the rare second issue of the first edition of Alice in Wonderland and Halsted Vander Poel gave two editions of an early work on dueling.

Several significant music collections and compositions were received. Geraldine Farrar presented an important collection of materials reflecting her life and musical achievements. Fritz Kreisler gave the Library more than 50 manuscripts of his own works. William Schuman presented the manuscripts of several of his compositions and Richard Rodgers deposited a collection of nearly all of his autograph musical manuscripts. Important groups of papers or autograph scores of Henry Cowell, John Alden Carpenter, Victor Herbert, Ruth Crawford Seeger, Henry Kimball Hadley, Samuel Barber, and Nicolas Medtner were received, and the commissions of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation and of the Koussevitsky Foundation brought a wealth of scores by other eminent modern composers to the Library.

Among the important manuscript collections received as gifts were a group of Jefferson Davis letters and the papers of James R. Garfield, Joseph E. Willard, Kermit Roosevelt, Ogden L. Mills, A. Mitchell Palmer, Kev Pittman, Fleet Adm. William D. Leahy, Brig. Gen. Frank P. Lahm, Bishop Charles Henry Brent, John Lloyd Balderston, Nelson T. Johnson, Stanley Washburn, and Otto S. Beyer. Alex. Brown & Sons of Baltimore gave the Library a collection of its records dating from its founding in 1800 to 1875 and the National Child Labor Committee presented a collection of materials relating to the committee's history. Additions were made to the Naval Historical Foundation Collection and to many other manuscript collections presented to the Library in earlier years.

These and other outstanding acquisitions were described in the Quarterly Journal of Current Acquisitions, in the Library of Congress Information Bulletin, and in the Library's press releases.

Acquisition Through Microfilming

The Library has continued to acquire important research materials through the medium of microfilm and, wherever possible, to publish checklists describing major collections available on film. The most important contribution of the year in making these materials known was the publication of the British Manuscripts Project: a Checklist of the Microfilms Prepared in England and Wales for the American Council of Learned Societies, 1941-1945. It provides a guide to the more than 15,000 manuscripts that were copied on 2,600 rolls of microfilm in Great Britain during World War II. The project from which these films resulted was sponsored jointly by the American Council of Learned Societies and the Library of Congress and was financed by a generous grant from the Rockefeller Foundation. An introduction to the list, which contains a history of the project, and an index of personal and geographic names give further information about the widely varied materials, which were copied in such collections as those of Oxford and Cambridge Universities, the British Museum, and the Public Record Office.

The cooperative project with the Museo Nacional de Historia in Mexico, initiated in 1951 to obtain for the Library copies of selected documents, has ended. The actual microfilming was done by the Centro de Documentación and it brought to the Library 400 reels. As a part of its program for obtaining copies of catalogs of Russian materials in European libraries, made possible by a grant from the Ford Foundation, the Library acquired microfilms of various catalogs in the Westdeutsche Bibliothek at Marburg, Germany, the Bibliothèque de Documentation Internationale Contemporaine in Paris, the Royal Library in Stockholm, the Société Scientifique Ševčenko, Sarcelles, France and the Bodleian Library, Oxford

In the spring of 1954 the Library began the systematic testing, on a sample basis, of processed microfilm received from outside sources. The tests were designed to ascertain the nature of the film base, the quantity of residual hypo (thiosulfate of soda), and the adequacy of definition of the image. Of 2,653 reels tested during the year, 408 were returned to the suppliers, in most instances because of excessive residual hypo. The procedures employed were described in an article in the Library Journal of March 15, 1955, which made the following points: a majority of processors are supplying adequate film, film from unknown or sporadic domestic and foreign suppliers must be tested, and an institution's outstanding reputation in other areas of library work does not guarantee that its film processing will be adequate.

George W. Schwegmann, Jr., Chief of the Union Catalog Division, replaced John W. Cronin, Director of the Processing Department, as the Library's representative on the interorganizational Microcard Committee, and he was also appointed to the Association of Research Libraries' Committee on Cooperative Access to Microfilms of Current Foreign Newspapers. Mr. Schwegmann also served on the Subcommittee on Listing Domestic Periodicals for Microfilming, which was established in February 1955 by the American Library Association's Board on Resources of American Libraries.

Publications Relating to Acquisitions

At its annual meeting in the early summer of 1955 the National Association of State Libraries recommended that each State library "take such action as may be necessary to provide the Library of Congress with copies of all State publications, for the use of the State's delegation in the Congress, for the use of Federal Government agencies, and for the use of national bibliographic purposes, such as the Monthly Checklist of State Publications." During the same summer Alton H. Keller, Chief of the Exchange and Gift Division, in another effort to extend the coverage of the Checklist, visited the State libraries and other agencies in Connecticut, Delaware, Maine, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, and Vermont. More than two-thirds of the States in the Union have been visited by Mr. Keller during the past 3 years in the interests of this program. As a result, the Monthly Checklist, which is the Library's oldest acquisitions list and which constitutes the national register of the documents of the State governments, included a larger number of publications in fiscal 1955 than in any previous year.

The number of libraries contributing reports on their serial acquisitions to New Serial Titles continued to grow and the participation for the first time of a considerable group of special libraries was particularly welcome. All members of the Association of Research Libraries are now contributing to this cooperative undertaking. The 1950-54 cumulation went to press 6 months earlier than last year's cumulation and the increasing usefulness of the publication won for it a citation by a committee of librarians in the Library Journal (January 1, 1955) as one of the "Top Ten Reference Books of 1954."

An additional service was inaugurated with the monthly issuance of New Serial Titles in subject arrangement by Dewey Decimal Classification number. Many libraries have evinced an interest in such an arrangement, since it enables them to survey for acquisitions purposes the new serials in selected fields of interest without having to survey the entire list. Issues of the journal are so arranged that they may be taken apart and major classes may be sent to departmental librarians, faculty members, or other specialists for their information and recommendations. Each major class has an outline of its principal subclasses and each classification number is provided with its subject interpretation. Serials that deal with two subjects or that would be of interest from two different subject viewpoints are listed under the appropriate number for each subject. Another new feature added during the year was the regular listing of changes in title or issuing body, cessations, suspensions, and mergers.

The Joint Committee on the Union List of Serials (representing nine American and Canadian library associations, the Bibliographical Society of America, the National Research Council, and the H. W. Wilson Company, publishers of the Union List) met in the Library in March 1955 to discuss the further development of New Serial Titles, which serves as a current supplement to the Union List of Serials.

The Monthly List of Russian Accessions during fiscal 1955 provided a listing by subject content of more than twice the number of monographs covered in the previous year, while the number of periodical issues analyzed also showed a substantial increase. All titles were listed in both their transliterated form and in an English translation. An author index to the monographs in volume 7 of the publication (April 1954–March 1955) appeared in the May 1955 issue.

During its fourth year, the East European Accessions List attained the scope planned for it at its inception. It now records the acquisitions from the East European area of 33 libraries in addition to those of the Library of Congress, and the December and June issues contain cumulative listings of all the periodicals that are regularly received by these libraries. The June 1955 issue provided for the first time a list of East European newspapers being received by the Library of Congress, in its next appearance this list will be expanded to include reports from the other contributing libraries. The Free Europe Committee, Inc., continued the financial support that makes the issuance of this publication possible.

Southern Asia Publications in Western Languages began its fourth year as a quarterly accessions list, and the increase in the number of subscriptions indicates that it is a useful research tool for those interested in South and Southeast Asia. About 200 titles, representing journals published all over the world, are now surveyed in each issue.

The four issues of the Quarterly Journal of Current Acquisitions, published as a supplement to this Annual Report, furnished both broad and detailed accounts of the year's most important accessions. In addition to reports by custodial divisions and area specialists, it carried articles on outstanding single pieces and collections. Among those so described were the Hale family papers, Lincolniana added to the Alfred Whital Stern Collection, first editions of Edgar Allan Poe, and a letter from Franz Liszt to Henry Wadsworth Longfellow.

Cooperative Acquisitions Projects

Documents Expediting Project—Since its founding in 1946 this project has procured and distributed to some 60 libraries more than 2,000,000 Federal publications that were not available from the Superintendent of Documents. This cooperative endeavor is operated under contract by the Library of Congress for the Joint Committee on Government Publications of the Association of Research Libraries, the American Library Association, the American Association of Law Libraries, and the Special Libraries Association. During the year the project distributed 50 percent more publications (122,000) and handled over 60 percent more special requests than in the previous year.

The advent of the Readex Microprint edition of nondepository Federal documents has affected the operations of the Documents Expediting Project and has led to a search for additional revenue. Efforts to increase the number of participating libraries met with some success, the minimum subscription rate was raised, and libraries were asked to pay postal charges on materials received.

United States Book Exchange—The USBE, which is housed in the Library of Congress, nearly doubled the number of its member libraries during the year. To 1,100 institutions in the United States and abroad, about 300,000 exchange items were sent as compared with 230,000 in the previous fiscal year. The increase in both membership and publications shipped was due, in part, to an arrangement whereby the International Cooperation Administration pays the service fees for many foreign libraries. USBE also provided some 85,000 publications to foreign libraries through its gift program.

The Organization of the Collections

ONE of the most important efforts of the year was the planning of the publication of a current author catalog of the books acquired by American libraries. This effort culminated a decade of searching for a method whereby the information contained in the National Union Catalog might be made available to libraries and to their users generally.

Previous Annual Reports have described the successive stages of the continuing effort to solve this problem. In 1954 the American Library Association's Board on Resources of American Libraries appointed a new Subcommittee on the National Union Catalog with Frederick H. Wagon, Director of the Library of the University of Michigan, as chairman. This new committee met in the Library of Congress in October 1954 and January 1955 to consider a proposal that the Library of Congress Catalog—Books Authors be expanded to include the catalog entries of other libraries for 1956 and later imprints. A careful study by the Library of the economics of the proposal showed that it could be effected if a sufficient number of libraries were able to support it. The committee's endorsement followed, and the proposal was unanimously approved by the full board at a meeting in Chicago in January 1955, where it was agreed that the Library would canvass the subscribers to the Library of Congress Catalog as to their desire for the proposed new service. This was done in April 1955. The response was prompt and affirmative in an overwhelming majority of instances. In consequence, at the close of the fiscal year the adoption of the plan, at least on an experimental basis, was dependent merely upon the result of an open discussion by the prospective subscribers in the meetings of the American Library Association to be held in Philadelphia in July 1955.

Up to now the Library of Congress Catalog—Books Authors has been predominantly a record of Library of Congress holdings. Its predecessor, the Catalog of Books Represented by Library of Congress Printed Cards (1898–July 1942), was commercially published in 167 volumes under the sponsorship of the Association of Research Libraries. Since 1947, Books Authors (earlier entitled the Cumulative Catalog and the Author Catalog) has been issued by the Library in book form on a monthly, quarterly, and annual basis. Two quinquennial cumulations (1942–47 and 1948–52), prepared by the Library but published commercially, have supplemented the original 167-volume compilation.

One of the chief purposes in publishing the Library of Congress catalog in book form was to relieve American libraries of the considerable expense of maintaining a depository catalog in card form. It was estimated that the cost of filing alone approached $1,000 a year for each library and that at least $200 worth of catalog equipment had to be added each year to house additions to the depository set. Moreover, many libraries found themselves hardpressed for space in which to house the growing catalog. On the part of the Library of Congress, the expense of providing the printed cards for depository sets was not inconsiderable. The book catalog has made it possible to provide depository service at a lower cost, in a more useful format, and with the cost of the undertaking shared jointly by all subscribers, of which the Library of Congress was one.

The inclusion in the new Current Author Catalog of all cards prepared by the contributing libraries for 1956 and later imprints would represent an expansion of the original purpose of the book catalog. It would probably be twice the size of the present author catalog and it would become, for the first time, a truly national catalog.

Such a catalog should have numerous beneficial effects. The inclusion of information about the locations of the publications listed would make possible regional and national planning of acquisitions programs and should reduce the unnecessary duplicative purchase of expensive works; it should also lead to a more equitable distribution of the burden of interlibrary loans, which now falls largely on a few of the major libraries. In particular, it should reduce for the Union Catalog Division the burden of filing cards for recent books and enable its staff to make more rapid progress on completing and editing the National Union Catalog and on preparing for eventual publication its record of holdings of books published prior to 1956. The ready availability of a great body of current bibliographical information should also somewhat reduce costs of acquisition, cataloging, and reference work. Finally, should the new author catalog meet with the hoped-for success, there would probably be a demand in the coming years for the issuance of a current subject catalog of American library resources.

Many problems remain to be solved, for example, the number of locations to be provided for a given title, but an effort will be made to obtain adequate reporting from all regions of the United States. Also, the Library of Congress hopes to have the assistance of an advisory committee of the Board on Resources of American Libraries in dealing with such problems and others that will inevitably arise.

Dewey Decimal Classification

The Dewey Decimal Classification Editorial Office, which the Library took over in January 1954 for the duration of editing, on contract for the Forest Press, the 16th edition of the Dewey Decimal Classification, completed 40 percent of the schedules in preliminary form. Those drafted were for statistics, language, general works in science, mathematics, chemistry, geology, medicine, recreation, literature, history, geography, and biography.

In order to prepare a revision of the classification that will meet the needs and desires of libraries, the Editorial Office has attempted to keep libraries informed on every aspect of its operations and has sought criticism and suggestions from as broad and representative a segment of librarianship as possible. To achieve this, monthly reports, minutes of editorial conferences, questionnaires, and the preliminary schedules have been widely distributed. The 16th edition has also been discussed at many library meetings. Members of the staff appeared before national conferences of the American Association of School Librarians, the Medical Library Association, the Geography and Map Division of the Special Libraries Association, and the American Library Association's Division of Cataloging and Classification and its regional groups. Papers read at these meetings have appeared or are scheduled for publication in the Journal of Cataloging and Classification, School Libraries, and other journals.

Committees and Special Services

Reexamination of existing cataloging practices and the formulation of new codes are largely carried out by Library committees. The Processing Committee, which has responsibility for recommending overall policies, appointed a special subcommittee during the year to revise the provisions for limited cataloging and to incorporate special provisions for law and music. The subcommittee submitted a revised draft, which would ease somewhat the restrictions of limited cataloging but which would, at the same time, extend the application of the limited cataloging principle to a larger body of materials. Two alternative suggestions were advanced, one calling for drastic simplification of the draft and the other for the adoption of one standard of cataloging to be applied, with certain limitations, to all publications. These suggestions are being explored. Other matters considered by the committee included a proposal for filing "Priority 4" cards in the Main and Official Catalogs, the custody and servicing of filmstrips, and the revision or expansion of various cataloging rules.

Heartening progress was made during the year in developing rules for cataloging special materials. Members of the staffs of the Reference Department, the Copyright Office, and the Law Library, as well as of the Processing Department, contributed to the development of these codes.

In November 1953 the Orientalia Processing Committee submitted to the Special Committee on Cataloging Oriental Materials of the ALA's Division of Cataloging and Classification a working paper on additions to and revisions of the standard rules for entry and description that would be necessary to make these rules adequate for use in the cataloging of Chinese, Japanese, and Korean materials. As a result of the ensuing studies by both groups, working together through extensive correspondence, the Orientalia Processing Committee revised its proposals and submitted a restatement of its recommendations to the ALA committee in December 1954. This redraft has had the most minute examination and criticism, and a number of further, but for the most part minor, modifications have been made in it.

The exceptional procedures being followed in this work were approved because of the tentative nature of the recommendations and the need felt by the Orientalia Processing Committee for the advice of other librarians familiar with problems of cataloging Oriental materials. Such advice has been most generously given by representatives of 12 Far Eastern collections in university libraries in the United States who served on, or as consultants to, the ALA Special Committee on Cataloging Oriental Materials. It is anticipated that the recommendations that will be submitted to the Director of the Processing Department by the Orientalia Processing Committee will agree substantially with those that will be made by the ALA committee. Eventually both the Library and the ALA committee will recommend to the Committee on Descriptive Cataloging of the ALA Division of Cataloging and Classification the modifications in the rules for entry and description that in their judgment should be adopted.

The almost complete agreement that has been reached in the work to date indicates that in all probability standardization in the cataloging of Oriental materials in American libraries is soon to be realized. The great benefits to libraries and users of libraries that have resulted from standardization in cataloging western-language materials are so well known that the developments described above are considered by all the participants to be of the greatest importance.

Not the least of these benefits will be the possibility of true cooperative cataloging, possibly with printed cards, in place of the present unsatisfactory duplication of cards from various libraries—cards that are so different in their content and form that they cannot be used in the catalogs of other participants in the program. Upon the recommendation of the Orientalia Processing Committee and of the ALA special committee, the Library of Congress has approved the inclusion of current Japanese imprints in the scope of materials to be covered by Library of Congress cards as soon as the new rules for cataloging Japanese materials are adopted.

Rules for cataloging collections of manuscripts were distributed in a preliminary edition by the Committee on Manuscripts Cataloging to some 750 institutions. The availability of these rules made it possible to plan for a National Union Catalog of Manuscript Collections. Such a project would involve collecting cataloging information from contributing libraries by means of data sheets, editing them for uniformity, and issuing Library of Congress printed cards. To test the validity of the method, data sheets for typical collections in the Manuscripts Division were prepared and edited, with favorable results, and cost estimates were drawn up. The cooperation of other libraries was sought and by the close of the fiscal year some 100 institutions, holding about 24,000 manuscript collections, had agreed to participate. Means for launching the project will be explored during the coming year.

The Music Processing Committee studied the catalogs of the Music Division and made recommendations for their improvement. It completed its recommendations on the limited cataloging of music and it also recommended major and minor changes in a number of rules for the descriptive cataloging of music. Revisions of the rule for folksongs and of certain phonorecord rules were prepared and were officially adopted by the ALA's Division of Cataloging and Classification.

The Committee on Film Cataloging devoted particular attention to UNESCO's International Standard System for the Cataloguing of Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Films and Filmstrips, especially with regard to its application to the Library's cataloging rules and related procedures. The results of this study were transmitted to UNESCO and other appropriate groups. Important among other subjects discussed were changes in the Library's rules for cataloging films, procedures for reprinting cards for films, new techniques in film production, and rules for cataloging slides.

The Committee on Rules for Cataloging Prints and Photographs distributed a draft of the rules to 75 picture libraries and museums. The comments and suggestions received were carefully considered and a revision of the draft of the code was completed. The Law Processing Committee considered the development and printing of filing titles in response to a request by the Cataloging Committee of the American Association of Law Libraries.

A signal honor came to the Library when its Specialist in Bibliographic and Cataloging Policy, Seymour Lubetzky, received from the ALA's Division of Cataloging and Classification the 1955 Margaret Mann Citation for outstanding professional achievement in cataloging and classification. Mr. Lubetzky was cited for "his scholarly analysis and critiques which have stimulated and influenced profoundly the revision of cataloging rules and are leading the library profession to a clear statement of principles as the basis for future cataloging policy." Mr. Lubetzky's report, Cataloging Rules and Principles, was published by the Library of Congress in 1953 and his prior studies on descriptive cataloging rules were embodied in Studies of Descriptive Cataloging, the report of Herman H. Henkle, then Director of the Processing Department, which was published in 1946.

John W. Cronin, Director of the Processing Department, served during 1954-55 as vice chairman of the Board on Cataloging Policy and Research of the ALA's Division of Cataloging and Classification. He was elected chairman of the board to serve during 1955-56.

Cooperative Cataloging

Two additional libraries, Fisk University and Baltimore Hebrew College, contributed for the first time to the cooperative cataloging program, through which 11,550 books were cataloged during the year, and the special programs for the cooperative cataloging of dissertations, films, talking books, and books in Braille were considerably expanded. The libraries of the Catholic University of America, Harvard University, the University of Illinois, the University of Michigan, the University of Minnesota, the New York Public Library Jewish Division, and the Visual Education Service of the U. S. Office of Education each supplied copy for more than 500 books and films. The University of California, in addition to its participation in the regular program, provided copy for the cataloging of phonorecords.

Cataloging

Although the Processing Department has primary responsibility for cataloging, the Copyright Office, the Law Library, and the Reference Department do substantial amounts of processing work, ranging from the participation in acquisition activities already noted to descriptive and subject cataloging. The section in this chapter on the organization of special materials relates especially to work done by the custodial divisions.

Descriptive Cataloging—Although there was a 25 percent increase in the amount of preliminary cataloging done by the Descriptive Cataloging Division, the quantity of material it received increased by nearly 39 percent over last year, resulting in an inevitable increase in arrearages. Despite the fact that 91,000 titles were searched as compared with 71,500 last year, some 105,000 were awaiting searching at the end of the fiscal year. This division regularly cataloged about the same number of titles as last year (53,000), but the number done by the Copyright Cataloging Division dropped from 16,000 to 13,000. Statistics on descriptive cataloging are given in section A of appendix III.

During the year the Library began the cataloging of publications in Arabic, Persian, and Indonesian and the resumption of a program for the cataloging of publications in Turkish was in prospect as the result of an exchange of staff with the National Library at Ankara. The accelerated cataloging procedure described in last year's report continued to provide an efficient method of combining preliminary and regular cataloging. "Priority 4" controls were extended to a larger body of materials. A backlog of older German titles was searched and processed in part, and the remaining volumes were rearranged.

Subject Cataloging—Increased production was achieved in almost every phase of subject cataloging during the year. Nearly 6,000 more titles were classified and were given subject headings than last year, for a total of 76,930, and nearly 314,000 volumes were labeled as compared with 283,400. These and other gains, which are reflected in section B of appendix III, resulted in a decrease in the arrearage of the Subject Cataloging Division.

Several of the classification schedules were revised and a new schedule for Hebrew Literature was developed and applied. Other schedules were reprinted with supplements containing the additions and changes made since the dates of the last editions, and the revision of the schedule for American History (Class E-F) has progressed to the point where it is expected that copy will be sent to the printer during 1955-56.

For the past several years Werner B. Ellinger has devoted considerable time to the development of theoretical preliminary schedules as the first stage in the constitution of a law classification. They have been processed as working papers and distributed to specialists for comment. Papers on modern German law and Roman law were prepared in earlier years. During fiscal 1955 Dr. Ellinger completed his work in the history of German law, and these preliminary schedules were issued as Working Paper No. 3, "History of German Law." He then resumed his research in ecclesiastical law and completed Working Paper No. 4, "Canon Law," comprising the canon law of the Roman Catholic Church, the law of the Eastern churches and of the principal Protestant churches, and the secular church law of Germany. At the request of the Law Library, Dr. Ellinger also developed provisional schedules for Chinese law, derived in large part from those he had developed for German law. This classification, which was tested by applying it to approximately 1,800 titles, most of them in Chinese, was issued as Working Paper No. 5, "Law of China." Schedules for Japanese and Korean law are to follow. The experimental application of the classification to Chinese law makes it seem probable that a wider use of general tables may be possible, this would significantly reduce both the length and the cost of the work.

The preparation of copy for the important sixth edition of Subject Headings Used in the Dictionary Catalogs of the Library of Congress proceeded at a satisfactory rate. It is hoped that it will be possible to issue this publication in fiscal 1956.

Serials

The editing of the Serial Record, supported by transferred funds, had to be discontinued at the close of fiscal 1954. Incomplete though it was (only 23 percent), it improved the Serial Record and enabled the Serial Record Division to concentrate its efforts in 1955 on overcoming its arrearage and on bringing its basic operations of sorting, accessioning, and cataloging as close to currency as possible. These efforts met with a large measure of success. More than 1,800,000 pieces were received, and by the end of the year only a small backlog (43,000) was on hand. The number of reference inquiries increased by 19 percent, but, by the use of special work schedules, weekend reference service was continued. Another step in the realization of one of the major objectives of a central Serial Record—the elimination of duplication of effort—was taken during the year when the Law Library's serial file was incorporated into the central Serial Record.

Maintenance of the Catalogs

More cards were prepared and distributed to the various catalogs than in the previous year (2,071,000 as compared with 1,800,000) and there was a 17 percent increase in the number of requests for information about books in the process of cataloging that were handled. Further statistics on catalog maintenance are contained in section C of appendix III.

A revised edition of Filing Rules for the Dictionary Catalogs of the Library of Congress was completed and sent to the printers. The previous edition was issued in 1945 for internal use only. A brochure entitled Card Catalogs of the Library of Congress was published; it describes the general and special catalogs and the card indexes maintained by the various divisions of the Library and offers guidance in their use.

In the past several years congestion in the public catalogs has become so serious that a general expansion is imperative. This led to a discussion of the future of these catalogs and called attention to the need for a long-range plan for their development. Seymour Lubetzky, the Library's Specialist in Bibliographic and Cataloging Policy, was asked to make a study of the problem and his report was submitted toward the close of the year. It deals with the rate of growth of the Library's general catalogs, the physical condition and cost of maintaining the Main and Annex Catalogs, the question of whether the Annex Catalog should be continued, the functions and structure of the Main Catalog, and the potentialities of alternative patterns of organization and includes a plan for the future development of the catalogs.

The Catalogs in Book Form

The Catalog Maintenance Division not only took an active part in planning for the expansion of the author catalog described above, but it brought out the regular issues of the Library of Congress Catalog and prepared for publication 5-year cumulations of the Armed Forces Medical Library Catalog and of the Library of Congress Catalog—Books Subjects. The former records by author and subject publications acquired and cataloged by the Armed Forces Medical Library since 1950, amounting to about 70,000 titles. Serving in the field of medicine and related subjects as a supplement to the Library of Congress Catalog, it will appear in 6 volumes, comprising 3,717 pages.

The Books Subjects cumulation, to be published in 20 volumes totaling 11,200 pages, will provide an index by subject matter to some 300,000 books, pamphlets, and periodicals cataloged by the Library of Congress and cooperating libraries in the years 1950–54. Some 450,000 subject entries will refer readers to titles in almost all languages in the Roman, Greek, Hebrew, and Cyrillic alphabets. Both the quinquennial cumulations will be published by J. W. Edwards, Inc., of Ann Arbor, Mich., and they are expected to appear late in 1955.

Union Catalogs

The plan for publishing a current supplement to the National Union Catalog, reported in the opening pages of this chapter, was the chief development of fiscal 1955. By the close of the year, the National Union Catalog and its supplements contained about 13,500,000 cards. Some 699,000 cards were received during the year from 150 institutions. The libraries of four institutions contributed cards for the first time: St. Lawrence University of Canton, N. Y., St. Joseph's College of Collegeville, Ind., Holy Family Monastery of Oldenburg, Ind., and St. Basil's Seminary of Toronto, Canada. Libraries participating in the Farmington Plan supplied over 8,450 cards for titles received from foreign sources. More than 18,800 requests for information about the location of books were received and 79 percent of the materials sought were located. Other statistics on the work of the Union Catalog Division are contained in section D of appendix III.

The Microfilming Clearing House, maintained by the Union Catalog Division, keeps a record of extensive microfilming projects and issues information concerning them in its Bulletin, 12 numbers of which were published during the year as appendices to the Library's Information Bulletin. The Clearing House files now contain entries for more than 4,000 newspapers in the United States and its possessions and for more than 900 foreign newspapers that have been microfilmed. This data is made more generally available through the publication at intervals of Newspapers on Microfilm, a third edition of which is now in preparation.

Cyrillic Union Catalog—The project to develop this catalog was begun in 1952. Its object was to create a catalog that would provide a subject and title approach to materials in the Cyrillic alphabets as well as the author approach possible through the Library's old Slavic Union Catalog. The Cyrillic Union Catalog is not a dictionary catalog but is arranged in three parts: authors and added entries, titles, and subjects. The preparation of entries and the filing of cards for noncurrent materials was practically completed during the year. The title part of the catalog, which consisted of some 176,000 cards at the end of the year, was the first to be brought up to date and the subject part, with 296,000 cards, was second. On June 30, 1955, about 5,500 cards remained to be filed into the author part, which contained nearly 175,000 cards. In addition, some 23,000 Library of Congress cards and some 21,000 cards contributed by other libraries were filed into the Slavic Union Catalog, which is being maintained as a master file.

Binding and Repair of Materials

Some 80,000 volumes and items were prepared for repair by the Reference Department alone during fiscal 1955, and more volumes (64,759) were bound during the year than in any year since 1951. The various repair stations in the custodial divisions operated at their normal levels for the most part but there was a notable increase in the number of manuscripts repaired; some 70,500 pieces were laminated as compared with about 51,200 last year. Procedures to be followed in the binding of title pages and indexes were set forth in a general order; and a minor economy was effected by eliminating the Library of Congress stamp on the lettering of books bound for the Library. Detailed statistics on the work of the Binding Division are contained in appendix IV.

Early in the fiscal year the National Bureau of Standards began a thorough study, cosponsored by the Library, the National Archives, the Army Map Service, and the Virginia State Library, of the preservation of documents by lamination. The principal subjects of investigation are: specifications for cellulose acetate film, deacidification treatment, tissue reinforcement, the effect of lamination on inks and papers, comparative data on flatbed and cylindrical laminating equipment, and new plastic films. By the end of the year the Bureau had assembled certain data and arrangements were made to continue the study in fiscal 1956.

Card Distribution

More printed catalog cards were sold—23,450,000—and more money for these and other sales of technical publications was received than ever before in the history of the card-distribution service. Gross sales amounted to $1,177,191, an increase of 9 percent over last year, and net sales were $1,161,222. Earned receipts deposited in the Treasury were $1,168,361, this amount includes, as always, some money from sales made late in the previous fiscal year. Complete statistics on card distribution are contained in appendix V.

The card-distribution service is constantly being improved. During the year nearly 800 American publishers greatly assisted these efforts by sending the Library advance copies of their new publications for rush cataloging and for selection for review by the United States Quarterly Book Review. This made it possible to have catalog cards available before the publication dates of nearly a third of the books received, and, with few exceptions, cards were available for the remaining titles within 4 weeks of the publication dates. Publishers also made it easier for libraries to order Library of Congress printed cards by printing the card numbers in the books themselves.

Orders for cards were ordinarily filled within 3 days of their receipt. One especially large order called for furnishing more than 300,000 cards to the library of the University of the Philippines, which was totally destroyed during World War II. Over 1,000,000 cards were supplied to the United States Information Agency for distribution to 200 Information Center libraries throughout the world. Orders received from 32 various libraries were analyzed as to the subject content, language, and imprint date of the titles for which cards were requested. This survey revealed that English-language titles represented 81 percent of the total, that 48 percent of the titles were printed within the last 3 years, that cards were in stock for 69 percent of the orders, which consequently could be filled immediately, and that an additional 10 percent of the orders were filled within 3 to 4 weeks.

Organization of Special Materials

A great deal of arranging, boxing, labeling, shelving, cataloging, and other processing activities are carried on in the Reference Department and the Law Library. This work is only slightly reflected in the statistical tables on descriptive and subject cataloging appended to this Report. To the extent that copy for catalog cards prepared outside the Processing Department results in printed cards, this work is included in these tables but only the production of the Copyright Cataloging Division and that of the Map Division are separately indicated. To show the range of processing activities of the Reference Department and the Law Library, two additional tables, sections E and F of appendix III, are included in this year's Report.

More than 87,000 man-hours, for example, were spent by the Reference Department in processing work. Nearly 15,000 items were given preliminary cataloging treatment and another 4,700 were regularly cataloged. Other guides to the collections, such as indexes (28,000 cards) and finding aids (1,300 pages), were prepared. More than 5,400,000 items, chiefly manuscripts, were arranged.

Only a few examples of special projects can be mentioned. Fiscal 1955 was the first full year of centralized cataloging of books in Braille and of talking books, and 80,000 cards, in dictionary sets, were supplied, with funds appropriated for Books for the Blind, to the 28 regional libraries through which the national library service for the blind is administered. Copy for these cards is prepared in the Division for the Blind and is edited by the Descriptive Cataloging Division before the cards are printed.

Inroads were made in the large arrearage of manuscripts awaiting arrangement. This arrearage of about 4,800,000 pieces was reduced by more than 1,000,000 pieces as a result of a cooperative arrangement between the Manuscripts Division and the graduate schools of the University of Chicago and the American and George Washington Universities, whereby candidates for advanced degrees were given instruction in the organization of manuscript materials by having them arrange materials basic to the subjects of their dissertations

In the Serials Division a special project to bring the binding of certain British, U S , and United Nations documents, as well as an arrearage of periodicals, to as current a state as possible resulted in the sorting and arranging of more than a quarter of a million items and the preparation of 11,299 volumes for binding

A major achievement of the Orientalia Division was the merging of the catalog of the Library's Yiddish collection with the Union Catalog of Yiddish. This consolidated catalog will serve as the basis for an encyclopedic dictionary of modern Yiddish literature

Although no staff is available to render reference service on the Library's motion-picture collection, it received more than usual attention during the year. One of the most important segments of the collection, the paper prints received as copyright deposits during the first decades of the development of the motion-picture art, are, through a cooperative arrangement with the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, being reconverted to motion-picture film. In the course of organizing these materials for this project, Elizabeth Franklin, librarian of the Academy, who served during the summer of 1954 as an Honorary Consultant and was to serve again in the summer of 1955, is identifying, arranging, and cataloging this invaluable collection of paper prints

In the Law Library there was a 10 percent increase in the number of books classified for the shelves—29,800 as compared with nearly 26,800 last year. In addition, nearly 2,000 volumes in the collection of rare books relating to law were classified. Some 4,300 volumes were prepared for binding, and a record number of cards were filed in the Law Library catalog—48,600, constituting the total receipts for the year, and 37,000 from the backlog, which has been reduced by half. Altogether, nearly 106,000 cards were arranged and filed. In one respect the Law Library was relieved of a burdensome activity—that of recording the receipt of legal serials; as previously noted, this responsibility was assumed by the Serial Record Division.

Special Services to Congress

THE SIGNIFICANCE of the role of the Library of Congress in the Federal legislative process is determined by the scope of its collections, a trained staff not only in the Legislative Reference Service but in all parts of the Library, and the effectiveness with which this staff can obtain, organize, and analyze the information from the collections that is requested by Members and Committees of Congress. The continued rise in the number of Congressional inquiries is, perhaps, an index to the usefulness of the service rendered by the Library.

Another all-time high in the amount of reference and research work done for Congress was recorded in fiscal 1955. Nearly 76,000 inquiries were answered as compared with about 69,000 last year. More than 19,000 of these requests were handled by departments other than the Legislative Reference Service. The Law Library, whose Foreign Law Section alone prepared translations and studies involving 17 languages and the laws of 24 jurisdictions, the General Reference and Bibliography Division, and the Serials Division were most frequently called upon, but specialized area, subject, and language knowledge, wherever it existed in the Library, was at the disposal of Congress. In addition, more than 39,000 volumes, newspapers, and magazines were lent to Congress through the Loan Division, and 94 of the Library's study rooms were used by Members and Committees.

Special reading-room service for Members and their staffs is provided in the Law Library in the Capitol and in the Congressional Reading Room in the Main Library Building. Congressional readers totaled

2,660 in the Law Library in the Capitol and 3,611 in the Congressional Reading Room, while an unknown number used such specialized reading rooms of the Library as that of the main Law Library. Books and other items issued for use in the Law Library in the Capitol came to 6,512, and an additional 3,700 volumes were lent for use in Congressional offices or on the floors of the House and the Senate. In the Congressional Reading Room, 18,629 items were issued for use in the room and 9,366 for use outside the premises.

The Legislative Reference Service, which exists solely to serve Congress, handled most of the inquiries from Members and Committees, or more than 56,000 out of the nearly 76,000 requests received. Of those, replies to some 39,300 involved reference and research work, while some 17,350 were "spot" inquiries, that is, they could be answered with readily available information. There is less and less demand for the general report available to all Members and more and more for reports tailored to meet the needs of one Member or Committee. In fiscal 1955 substantial and important reports available for general Congressional distribution numbered only 226, while those prepared especially for the use of one Member or Committee totaled 1,006. This significant development has taken place since 1951, when the number of reports of both types was about equal. It should be borne in mind, however, that in the great majority of instances the substance of these individualized reports and often the reports themselves were subsequently made generally available by the Member or Committee requesting them.

Major reports prepared followed rather closely the fields of Congressional interest. For the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, further studies were undertaken for its Subcommittee on Amending the United Nations Charter and for its Subcommittee on Technical Aid. The issue of extending the reciprocal trade agreements program resulted in additional "district studies," prepared for certain Members to show the stake that their districts have in exports and imports; near the end of the fiscal year, for example, LRS was asked by both Michigan Senators and a majority of the Members of the House Delegation to do such a study for their entire State. The upward revision of the minimum wage occasioned a number of reports, and the field of veterans' affairs opened up as never before. A number of technical studies were made for the House Select Committee on Survival Benefits, and a report on the entire history of special treatment for veterans was in progress at the end of the year for the House Veterans' Affairs Committee.

Probably the outstanding study of the year was that on the comparative economy of the Soviet Bloc and the West, which was made by a number of members of the LRS staff under the direction of Howard S. Piquet. It was published as a Committee Print by the Joint Committee on the Economic Report and was commented upon throughout the Nation. The finding that attracted the most attention was that which demonstrated that the economic gap between the Free World and the Soviet Bloc is widening.

Seventy LRS reports were published as Congressional documents or in extensions of remarks in the Congressional Record; this compares with 81 last year and 36 the year before. A list of those so published during fiscal 1955 constitutes section C of appendix VI of this Report.

The Digest of Public General Bills.—For some time it has been recognized that the Digest, which is published by the Legislative Reference Service, is subject to criticism because of the delay in its appearance following the close of each month. Careful study indicated that this gap could not be materially closed if publication continued along present lines. At the Library's request, the Committee on House Administration authorized a survey of the Members to find out what changes would be most welcomed. As the result of this survey a plan has been submitted whereby monthly cumulations are to be replaced by semimonthly supplements, except for 4 cumulations per session. It is hoped that this will result in a greater degree of currency in the publication.

During fiscal 1955 the Digest of Public General Bills included for the first time digests of important concurrent and simple resolutions; the total number of resolutions and bills digested amounted to 6,661. This compares with 6,251 bills and joint resolutions digested during the first session of the Eighty-third Congress; during the second session of that Congress, 5,176 bills and joint resolutions were digested.

CHAPTER IV

Reference and Related Services

THE COMPLEX OF ACTIVITIES by which the comprehensive collections of the Library of Congress are interpreted and otherwise made useful to agencies of the Federal Government, the world of scholarship, other libraries, and the public comprise the reference services. They range all the way from providing routine guidance in the use of the card catalogs to giving special assistance to scholars and compiling high-priority reports for Government agencies. They vary not only in terms of the inquirer's needs but also according to the kind and condition of the materials serviced, which include not only cataloged books in the general collections but materials that are under less precise control, such as manuscripts, photographs, music, fine prints, sound recordings, and the like, in the special collections. Broadly conceived, the reference services include the preparation of exhibits, the planning and presentation of literary and musical programs, and the custodial activities necessary to improve the service of materials as well as informational and bibliographical activities.

Service of Materials

To some extent reference service, like service to Congress, is performed throughout the Library, but it is chiefly the responsibility of the Law Library and the Reference Department. The table that constitutes appendix VII gives a quantitative picture of reader and reference services during fiscal 1955. It details, division by division and department by department, the number of reference services performed, such as questions answered for readers, informational and loan requests handled by telephone, conferences held with inquirers, letters answered, translations made, and bibliographies and special reports prepared, and this chapter cannot attempt to describe the reference work of individual units.

There was a significant increase in the total number of readers, including those who used the special facilities for Congress—751,000 as compared with 681,500 in fiscal 1954. The Reference Department had more than 690,000 readers and the Law Library (exclusive of the Law Library in the Capitol) more than 54,000; for them more than two million books and other materials were provided for use in the Main Library Building and the Annex.

The impact of this increase in readers was all the greater because of the reduction in staff suffered by the Library at the beginning of fiscal 1955. Although impossible to measure, the quality of service not only to those who came into the Library but to others who sought its assistance was inevitably affected adversely. The decrease in the number of reference conferences held, for example, indicates that readers, after a minimum orientation in the Library's collections and bibliographic apparatus, are to a considerable extent having to get along by themselves. Another result of increased demands on the Library is the extensive use of form letters; nearly 39,000 were sent last year by the Reference Department alone. Most of these letters directed inquirers to local libraries and other sources of information or explained that the Library was unable to undertake the extensive research that would be required for an adequate reply.

There are other factors affecting reference service that cannot be reflected in a statistical table. For example, the previously noted efforts of the custodial divisions to improve the quality of the materials accessioned by taking an active part in acquisitions work consume time that might be currently devoted to reference work. But, in the long run, these efforts are likely not only to insure fine collections but to increase the efficiency of the reference service by augmenting the knowledge of those who perform it and by keeping material of marginal value out of channels where it will have to be cared for and served to the public.

The problems posed by the size and the location of the collections and their related catalogs also have an effect on reference service. As the collections grow and as the card catalogs are progressively enlarged, the necessity of finding space for books and card trays, to say nothing of readers, assumes increasing importance, as does the problem of rendering efficient service. To throw light on these problems, a pilot study was made of types of readers using the general reading rooms, distinguishing high-school, college, and post-graduate students, readers pursuing research on official assignments, and the general public, and recommendations based on this inquiry were being considered as the year ended.

Several other studies designed to improve reference service were made. The Serials Division assessed the character of demands for its services in both the Periodicals and Newspapers Reading Rooms. Although the largest single category of requests was for newspapers and periodicals by specified title, the percentage of requests for materials on a given subject or pertaining to a given area of the world verified the division's conviction that it needs to prepare and maintain its own bibliographic aids. The survey also pointed to the need for the refinement of these tools. A study by the Map Division to ascertain the sources of information and materials most frequently used in providing service to readers showed that the map files and the reference collections in the Map Reading Room were adequate for meeting more than 70 percent of the requests. A statistical inventory of service rendered by the Curator of the Science Room showed that the greatest concentration of inquiries was in science (Class Q) and technology (Class T), with fewer in medicine (Class R) and agriculture (Class S); that the largest group of readers was composed of private investigators and the second largest of Government investigators; and that the heaviest incidence of inquiries, as might be expected, pertained to recent publications—59 percent for the period 1951 to date and 33 percent for the period 1926–50.

Concern with the less conventional forms of library materials also occasioned study by the Science Division of the implications posed by such copyright deposits as a continuing bibliography of electron microscopy on key-sort punched cards and the Pacific Aeronautical Index, which is indexed by means of the Uniterm scheme and is received on long folded sheets of paper printed mechanically by International Business Machines equipment. In contrast, such routine but essential adjuncts of reference service as shelfreading continued as usual, except that, through the utilization of staff temporarily available to the Stack and Reader Division, it was possible to inspect nearly 20,000 more shelves than in fiscal 1954 to insure that books on them were in their proper places. Some 59,000 shelves were read as compared with 39,500 last year. Continuing attention was also given to the assignment of study rooms and study desks for definite periods so that these facilities, which are limited and are in great demand, may be made available to as many investigators as possible.

Loan Service.—The number of items lent for use outside the Library dropped from 201,763 in fiscal 1954 to 183,293 in fiscal 1955; this decrease is more than accounted for, however, by the unusual loan last year of some 30,000 manuscripts to the National Archives for a microfilming project. The volume of interlibrary loans—by means of which the Library of Congress supplements the resources of libraries throughout the country—increased by 10 percent. Nearly 20,000 volumes were lent to 1,691 libraries in all 48 States and a number of foreign countries. But it is the borrowing of materials for use in official Government research that has caused an increase in interlibrary loans of more than 350 percent over the past 8 years.

An interesting experiment in the use of a telefacsimile system in interlibrary loan was conducted during the year. With a transmitter installed in the Library's Loan Division and a receiver installed in the Library of the National Institutes of Health at Bethesda, Md., it was possible to transmit copies of articles needed by NIH scientists without having the journals containing them leave the Library of Congress. Furthermore, the copies could be kept. The transmitter scans the article with a "flying spot" of light, the blacks and whites of the printed page are converted by photoelectric cells to electrical impulses, and these are sent by a special telephone line to the receiver, which reconverts them to print at the rate of 15 inches a minute. The experiment demonstrated that material can be transmitted over the particular distance involved in the trial at approximately the same cost as interlibrary loan, with additional advantages in speed, in retention of the original book by the sending institution, and in the possession of a copy by the recipient. However, certain mechanical defects in the transmitting mechanism need to be overcome to make the system wholly acceptable. Meanwhile, since the needs of the National Institutes of Health are chiefly for specialized medical journals, which the Library of Congress does not collect extensively, the transmitter was moved in March 1955 to the Armed Forces Medical Library.

Books for the Blind

The national program of library service for the blind is administered by the Library through 28 institutions serving as regional libraries, of which the Library of Congress is one. It circulated 67,810 volumes to 4,667 readers in its region. Altogether nearly 1,306,000 talking books and books in Braille and other raised types were lent to more than 52,300 blind persons in the United States, its Territories, and its Insular Possessions, an increase of 1.3 percent over last year. About the same number of new titles—346—were added as last year; they consisted of 141 titles in Braille, 5 in Moon type, and 200 talking books. Under contract 5,300 talking-book reproducers were manufactured. These are lent to individual blind readers through the various State commissions for the blind or similar agencies.

Accomplishments in the centralized cataloging of books in Braille and talking books have already been mentioned. There was also progress in making technical improvements—through contracts with the American Printing House for the Blind and the American Foundation for the Blind—in methods of printing Braille, in audio-reproduction equipment, and in ways of repairing the talking-book reproducers.

Bibliographic Work and Publications

Bibliographies and other studies of the Library's holdings are prepared, and for the most part published, to supply information to Government agencies and the public. But they also support other reference activities by supplementing the Library's catalogs and conserving time in searching, and they facilitate the acquisitions program by pointing up the strength and the weaknesses of the collections.

Aside from the reports compiled by the Legislative Reference Service for Congress, the majority of the bibliographies, articles, and special studies are prepared in the Reference Department, as appendix VII on reader and reference services shows. The Law Library, especially the Mid-European Law Project of the Foreign Law Section, however, last year completed such extensive studies as Church and State Behind the Iron Curtain; this was produced under the editorship of Vladimir Gsovski, chief of the section. The checklist of the microfilms made by the British Manuscripts Project, which was compiled in the Processing Department, has already been mentioned. And the preparation of the Catalogue of the Library of Thomas Jefferson, edited by E. Millicent Sowerby, was continued in the Information and Publications Office. When the year ended, volume IV was in press and Miss Sowerby was completing the final volume, number V, and compiling the index to the Catalogue, although the Jefferson Catalog Project had been terminated on May 8, 1955, when funds in a grant from the Lilly Foundation were exhausted.

All the publications of the Library that appeared in fiscal 1955 are listed in section A of appendix VI, and a list of publications in progress as the year ended constitutes section B of that appendix.

Only a few of the many activities of the Reference Department in the bibliographical field can be mentioned. The work of the Map Division in supplementing the List of Geographical Atlases in the Library of Congress, of the Manuscripts Division in completing the calendar of the Mexican documents in the Harkness Collection, and of the Hispanic Foundation (assisted by the Manuscripts Division) in editing the List of Spanish Residencias in the Archives of the Indies, 1516-1775, represent major efforts to provide definitive lists of specific materials that will facilitate the work of scholars for some time to come. The Slavic and East European Division took advantage of the temporary presence of expert consultants to encourage the compilation of special bibliographies in fields lacking even rudimentary coverage. As a result, when the year ended it was editing for publication a bibliography on Yugoslav geography, a selective bibliography of English books on Lithuania, and a list of Czech and Slovak abbreviations.

The work of the Science Division in developing lists of scientific periodicals published in the United States and in the Soviet Union and of periodicals dealing with biological sciences was made possible by financial support received from the National Science Foundation. In addition to the immediate objective of identifying for the use of scientists these scientific materials scattered through the collections of the Library, a further purpose was to determine the potentialities of scientific periodical resources for research and the long-range needs for the development of adequate indexing and abstracting controls.

The large-scale bibliographical projects conducted by the Air Information, Air Research, and Technical Information Divisions, which are financed entirely with funds transferred from the Department of Defense, continued during the year without significant changes in the patterns of their operations or their products.

Other bibliographic work of the Reference Department was a by-product of normal reference functions, which require the development of finding aids that lend themselves to further exploitation. Examples include a list of documents of international meetings (1953), being prepared by the International Organizations Unit of the General Reference and Bibliography Division, the fourth issue of the Selective Checklist of Prints and Photographs Recently Cataloged, compiled in the Prints and Photographs Division, and the handsomely printed Catalog of the Jean Hersholt Collection of Hans Christian Andersen, compiled in the Rare Books Division. The extensive bibliography on American civilization, which is scheduled for completion next fiscal year, will provide a highly selective coverage of significant writings in a panoramic survey of American history and culture; even in its incomplete state it has already served as a valuable reference tool and as a source from which several shorter bibliographies have been compiled.

The United States Quarterly Book Review, whose role in the Card Division's program to obtain prepublication copies of books for advance cataloging has already been noted, published reviews of 1,159 out of the 8,916 books considered, an increase of 125 over fiscal 1954. In November 1954, when the Office of the Assistant Librarian was abolished, the Review once again became the administrative responsibility of the Reference Department.

The Census Library Project, established in the fall of 1940 as a cooperative undertaking of the Library of Congress and the United States Bureau of the Census, was terminated during the year. The original purpose of the project—to compile bibliographies on the official demographic literature of the major areas of the world—had been accomplished and was being continued in the annual bibliography contributed, on a reimbursable basis, to the Demographic Yearbook, which is published by the Statistical Office of the United Nations. This bibliography will continue to be prepared in the Library of Congress by the former Chief of the Census Library Project, Phyllis G. Carter, in her present capacity as assistant editor of the Handbook of Latin American Studies.

To the interrelationships already noted between reference work on the one hand and acquisitions, processing, and custodial activities on the other, must be added the necessary and significant interrelationship between specialists in the various divisions of the Reference Department and elsewhere in the Library in the preparation of bibliographies and in the presentation of programs interpreting the collections. For example, the preparation of a list of foreign language-English dictionaries and of Current National Bibliographies required the expert knowledge of area and language specialists throughout the Library. The compilation, Walt Whitman: A Catalog Based upon the Collections of the Library of Congress, was prepared through the cooperation of the staffs of the Manuscripts, Rare Books, Music, Prints and Photographs, Orientalia, and General Reference and Bibliography Divisions, under the expert guidance of Professor Harold W. Blodgett of Union College, who served as the Library's temporary consultant on Whitmaniana. The bibliographic work on the Whitman catalog was utilized, in turn, in preparing the Library's exhibit commemorating the centennial of the publication of Leaves of Grass: in fact, items that were exhibited were starred in the catalog, which thus also served as an exhibition catalog.

Exhibits

Although coordinated by the Exhibits Office, the Library's extensive exhibit program is essentially a cooperative effort. Not only do various divisions of the Reference Department and the Law Library provide materials from their collections and expert assistance but some of those units have exhibits of their own; the annual National Exhibition of Prints, arranged by the Prints and Photographs Division, is probably the most ambitious of these shows.

Altogether, 68 exhibits, large and small, were on view in the Library during the year, giving the 800,000 visitors to the buildings an insight into the wealth and scope of the collections. Among visitors from abroad were several callers of state. They were the President of Liberia, William V. Tubman (October 18, 1954); Queen Mother Elizabeth of Great Britain, accompanied by Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower (November 6); Prime Minister Shigeru Yoshida of Japan (November 12); the Chancellor of Austria, Julius Raab (November 23); Field Marshal P. Pibulsonggram, Prime Minister of Thailand (May 5, 1955); and the Prime Minister of the Union of Burma, U Nu (June 29).

The first of many nationwide observances of the centennial of the publication of Leaves of Grass was held in the Library, when, on January 3, 1955, a major exhibit on Walt Whitman was opened. Containing some 200 pieces, the show featured successive editions of Leaves of Grass and illustrated Whitman's early life and interests, his surroundings in New York and Brooklyn, his publications before 1855, his career as a civil servant in Washington, his work in Civil War hospitals, his association with Abraham Lincoln, his fame outside the United States, and his methods of composition.

The exhibit was opened with a lecture by the noted Whitman collector, Charles E. Feinberg. Entitled "Notes on Whitman Collections and Collectors," it was included in Walt Whitman: A Catalog Based upon the Collections of the Library of Congress, which was published at the time of the opening ceremony. Also as part of the Whitman celebration, lectures were given under the auspices of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Poetry and Literature Fund on January 10, 17, and 24 by Gay Wilson Allen, Mark Van Doren, and David Daiches, and a reading of selections from his works was presented on January 30 by the well-known actor, Arnold Moss; these three lectures were later published under the title Walt Whitman: Man, Poet, Philosopher.

The sesquicentennial of the birth of the great Danish storyteller, Hans Christian Andersen, was commemorated by a large exhibit that gave the public an opportunity to see part of the rich Anderseniana presented to the Library in recent years by Mr. and Mrs. Jean Hersholt. His Excellency Henrik de Kauffmann, Ambassador of Denmark, opened the exhibit on April 4, 1955. Numerous editions of the fairy tales, some of them very rare, were placed on view, together with Andersen's correspondence with publishers and friends and much other material. To many of those who saw the exhibit, familiar with Andersen only through the well-loved tales learned in childhood, it was a surprise to learn from it that his genius was a versatile one that produced novels, plays, travel books, poems, and memoirs as well.

The rugged New England coast was the theme of a large exhibit that was opened to the public on July 22, 1954. Other displays that aroused much interest featured the photographs of Arnold Genthe; papers and other materials given to the Library by Geraldine Farrar; the musical scores and memorabilia of Richard Rodgers; a group of fine bindings of books dating from the 12th to the 20th century in the Rosenwald Collection; and an exhibit of photographs of Venetian villas (assembled in Italy and circulated in the United States by the Smithsonian Institution), which was opened on June 3, 1955, by His Excellency Manlio Brosio, Ambassador of Italy.

The 12 Exhibits-of-the-Month marked a variety of anniversaries and notable events. Among the topics they covered were the 1,600th anniversary of the birth of St. Augustine, the bicentennial of the publication of Dr. Samuel Johnson's A Dictionary of the English Language, the sesquicentennial of the birth of Nathaniel Hawthorne, and the centennial of the birth of Robert Marion La Follette.

On 31 occasions materials were lent, under rigid safeguards if they were originals, for exhibition outside the Library. Some 200 Currier and Ives prints were displayed in London; the "Wild and Woolly West" exhibit was lent to Roosevelt House in New York; the French Code Civil display was shown at the Cabildo in New Orleans; and the photographic section of the Kansas and Nebraska Territorial Centennial Exhibit was circulated in those States.

Readings and Lectures

In addition to the lectures on Walt Whitman already mentioned, a number of other readings and discussions were arranged by the Reference Department and presented under the auspices of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Poetry and Literature Fund. Carl Sandburg, distinguished poet and biographer of Lincoln, opened the season on October 25, reading selections of poetry and prose and giving a brief commentary on romanticism and realism as related to democracy in modern art and literature. Jessica Tandy and Hume Cronyn appeared in a program of dramatic readings on November 22. Dr. Merrill Moore, poet and psychiatrist, lectured on "The 'Fugitive' Poets of Nashville, Tennessee" on December 13. On February 14 Clarence Derwent gave readings from the poems of Edwin Arlington Robinson, Ben Jonson, and William Shakespeare. Lord Dunsany provided a memorable evening of observation and banter on poets old and new on February 28. Frank C. Baxter, professor at the University of Southern California, read selections from and commented upon 13 centuries of English poetry on March 28. And the final recital of the season, by Thornton Wilder, proved a major literary event when Mr. Wilder elected to read the first two acts of his new play, "The Alcestiad," which was then in manuscript.

The annual lecture in memory of Louis Charles Elson, pioneer music scholar, established by the will of the late Bertha Elson, was given on May 23 by Prof. Karl Geiringer of Boston University. His subject was "Symbolism in the Music of Johann Sebastian Bach." The lecture will be published during fiscal 1956. All the lectures and readings presented by the Library in fiscal 1955 are listed in appendix IX.

Concerts

Last year marked quinquennial anniversaries for three foundations that have immeasurably enriched the Library's musical resources. It was the 30th anniversary of the establishment of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation, the 20th of the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation, and the 5th of the Serge Koussevitzky Music Foundation.

A festival in memory of Mrs. Coolidge, who died in November 1953, was presented in the Temple on South Mountain in Pittsfield, Mass., on August 21 and 22, 1954. It was there, in 1918, that Mrs. Coolidge began her efforts in behalf of chamber music, the success of which inspired her, 7 years later, to offer funds to the Congress of the United States for constructing an auditorium in the Library and for endowing a foundation to present concerts there. Among the artists who performed at the festival were Rudolf Serkin, pianist, Leonard Warren, baritone of the Metropolitan Opera Company, Alexander Schneider, violinist, the Kroll String Quartet, and members of the Boston Symphony Orchestra. Two new works were commissioned for the occasion: Gian Francesco Malipiero's Sonata a Quattro, for flute, oboe, clarinet, and bassoon, performed with Mrs. Coolidge's son, Albert Sprague Coolidge, playing the oboe part; and the American composer Norman Dello Joio's "Lamentation of Saul," for baritone, flute, oboe, clarinet, viola, violoncello, and piano, with Mr. Dello Joio as pianist. The manuscripts of these works were added to the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation Collection in the Library.

In addition to the 3 concerts comprising the memorial festival, the Coolidge Foundation sponsored 35 recitals of chamber music, 9 of which were performed in the Coolidge Auditorium. One of them, on February 18, featured the first performance of Trio No. 2 for violin, violoncello, and piano by the American composer Ross Lee Finney.

Several unusual programs were included in the 23 concerts presented in the Library by the Gertrude Clarke Whittall Foundation. Arnold Schoenberg's "Pierrot Lunaire," for voice and instruments, was performed for the first time in the Library on January 7, and his Woodwind Quintet (Op. 26) was given on March 11. The program for the April 14 and 15 concerts by the Budapest String Quartet included the string octets of Felix Mendelssohn and Georges Enesco. The Mendelssohn manuscript, which is in the Whittall Foundation Collection, was exhibited on the occasion.

The Kroll String Quartet assisted by Vincent Persichetti, pianist, gave a special concert on February 4 to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the Serge Koussevitzky Music Foundation. The program included two works commissioned by the Foundation: a string quartet by Irving Fine and a piano quintet by Mr. Persichetti, which was performed for the first time. Manuscript scores of a number of commissioned works, including the Persichetti quintet and compositions by Leonard Bernstein, Walter Hartley, Andrew Imbrie, Colin McPhee, Darius Milhaud, Robert Moevs, and Heitor Villa-Lobos, were added to the Koussevitzky Foundation Collection.

In honor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra's 75th anniversary, the Koussevitzky Foundation joined with the orchestra in commissioning a series of new works by prominent composers. The manuscripts will in due course be added to the Foundation's collection in the Library. The composers chosen for these commissions were Samuel Barber, Leonard Bernstein, Benjamin Britten, Aaron Copland, Henri Dutilleux, Gottfried von Einem, Howard Hanson, Jacques Ibert, Bohuslav Martinu, Darius Milhaud, Goffredo Petrassi, Walter Piston, William Schuman, Roger Sessions, and Heitor Villa-Lobos.

On November 26 the Juilliard String Quartet gave a recital in the Coolidge Auditorium under the auspices of the Nicholas Longworth Foundation, established in 1931 by friends of the late Speaker of the House of Representatives. All the concerts presented in the Library or elsewhere under the auspices of the Library's various music foundations are arranged by the Music Division, and they are listed in section A of appendix IX.

As in previous years, all the concerts given at the Library were broadcast in their entirety by Station WGMS-FM in Washington, and they were rebroadcast in several other sections of the country by means of tape recordings. Twenty-seven discussions of famous books were arranged by the General Reference and Bibliography Division for broadcast during the intermissions. In each discussion, a combination of an interesting topic, an interesting guest, and an interesting approach to the subject were sought. The programs covered famous literary works epitomizing a historical era, theories of history, classics of adventure, and satire. Among the participants were the Honorable Earl Warren, Chief Justice of the United States, who discussed Blackstone's Commentaries on the Law of England; Francis Biddle, former U. S. Attorney General and Solicitor General, who spoke on Oliver Wendell Holmes' The Common Law; and Mark Van Doren, distinguished poet, who took part in a symposium on Mother Goose.

Poetry and Folklore Recording

A $25,000 grant from the Carnegie Corporation of New York was received during the year for making long-playing records of American folk-music and folklore. This made possible the issuance, through the cooperative efforts of the Folklore Section and the Recording Laboratory, of three long-playing records (L44-L46) of "Animal Tales Told in the Gullah Dialect." These folktales—the first ever issued by the Library—are variants of the well-known Uncle Remus stories. They were recorded by the late Albert H. Stoddard of Savannah, Ga. Recordings of Jack-the-Giant-Killer tales of North Carolina and of folktales and folk-music of other sections will be made under this grant.

Funds for recording additional poets in the "Twentieth Century Poetry in English" series have been exhausted, but an order from the Division for the Blind enabled the Recording Laboratory to transfer to long-playing records the 10 albums in this series that had not previously been transferred to the newer form. The 10 long-playing records of Indian music edited by Willard Rhodes of Columbia University, which were announced last year, went on sale during fiscal 1955.

The Recording Laboratory, which operates without appropriated funds, remains in a precarious financial state. It was impossible to replace obsolescent equipment, and receipts dropped from $28,132 in fiscal 1954 to $23,919. Complete statistics on finances, production, and sales are contained in appendix X.

CHAPTER V

Administration, Personnel, Finance

Administration

Librarian's Conference.—After a few meetings during the first month of the fiscal year, the Librarian's Conference, which considers top policy matters, was not held until November 24, 1954, when its weekly sessions were resumed with reduced membership. The Conference now consists of the Librarian, the Chief Assistant Librarian, the Deputy Chief Assistant Librarian, the directors of the six departments, and the Administrative Assistant to the Librarian serving as the executive officer of the Conference. Others attend as required to present particular subjects. Twenty-six meetings were held during the year. Among the topics discussed were the Library's policy and procedures in a reduction in force; the proposed establishment of a union catalog of serials in the District of Columbia area; the selection of staff members to represent the Library of Congress at professional meetings; the duties and term of office of consultants, honorary consultants, and fellows of the Library of Congress; the status of staff members holding positions paid from funds temporarily available; recommendations of the Binding Committee for achieving economies in the binding of materials; and the bonding of certifying officers. Detailed reviews of the activities of all the Library's units and of policies governing the Library's acquisitions program were begun.

Administrative Regulations. — During the year the Library issued 33 General Orders and 34 Special Orders. Some of the more important of the former are discussed under appropriate headings below.

A series of Administrative Memoranda was launched to supply needed information or instructions dealing with fiscal and personnel matters not appropriate for inclusion in General and Special Orders. The "Federal Employees Group Life Insurance Act of 1954" (Public Law 598, 2d Sess., 83d Congress) gave rise to a short series of "Insurance Memoranda," which transmitted necessary information to the staff during the weeks following the enactment of this legislation.

Changes in Organization.—On November 24, 1954, the position of Assistant Librarian, vacant since the retirement of Solon J. Buck at the end of August 1954, was abolished and the units formerly responsible to the Assistant Librarian were reassigned—the Information and Publications Office and the Exhibits Office to the Chief Assistant Librarian and the United States Quarterly Book Review to the Reference Department. The chart opposite shows the organization of the Library on June 30, 1955.

Minor intradivisional reorganizations accompanied classification surveys in the Card Division, the Stack and Reader Division, and the Loan Division. In the Stack and Reader Division a new group of stack supervisors (four positions) was established to provide close, continuing supervision of each of the four major stack areas, which hitherto could receive only intermittent attention from one senior and one junior stack inspector.

Personnel

Stephen Gould took office as Director of Personnel on June 6, 1955, succeeding

Jacob Mason, who resigned on February 23 to enter private business. Mr. Gould came to the Library from the Federal Civil Defense Administration, where he had served as Director of Personnel since 1954. Other major personnel changes of the year were recorded in the Library of Congress Information Bulletin as they occurred, and the list of officers that prefaces this report also reflects these changes.

The total number of personnel actions in all categories increased from 4,373 in fiscal 1954 to 4,972 in fiscal 1955. These included 579 appointments, 487 promotions, and 1,302 periodic step increases. Approximately 4,500 applications for appointment were received and 6,540 interviews were held. Recruitment was unusually difficult in the case of clerk-typists, stenographers, and guards, in which the dearth of qualified applicants was exceptional. Otherwise, the greatest continuing need is for competent bilingual specialists in the fields of science and engineering.

Decisions of the Comptroller General on questions raised by the Library—most of them relating to personnel matters—are summarized in appendix XI.

Reduction in Force.—Throughout all departments of the Library the reduction in force necessitated by the cut in fiscal 1955 appropriations resulted in the net loss of 41 positions. The administration was obliged to forego the appointment of the 5 library-school recruits selected for fiscal 1955, because the positions reserved for them had to be abolished. Later, however, 4 of the recruits were appointed to regular positions. The total budgeted positions for fiscal 1955 on direct appropriations numbered 1,563, on working funds 600, and on gift and trust funds 178—2,341 in all. Complete statistics on employment during the year are in appendix XII.

Status.—A problem of increasing concern to the administration arose from the policy stated in General Order 1475, issued June 13, 1951, to the effect that staff members supported by working funds, or gift and trust funds, should enjoy all tenure rights accorded staff members supported by appropriations made directly to the Library. However desirable it was from some points of view to accord staff members, regardless of the sources of their compensation, the same status, there were grave doubts as to the wisdom of further increasing the ratio of staff members having permanent status to the number of permanent budgeted positions. General Order No. 1574 of January 3, 1955, therefore announced the policy that thereafter appointments and other assignments to positions paid from transferred funds and from certain gift and trust funds and other funds limited in amount or in duration of availability would be made on a temporary or indefinite basis. Specifically, the General Order limited probational appointments and confirmation as permanent in the service to those budgeted positions that are paid from appropriations made directly to the Library. Persons serving in probational status on January 3, 1955, however, remained eligible for confirmation as permanent, subject to satisfying the usual qualifications.

At the close of the fiscal year, 1,744 staff members had permanent status and 224 had probational status, a total of 1,968, while there were only 1,563 budgeted positions. At the end of fiscal 1954, there were 1,776 employees with permanent and 285 with probational status, or a total of 2,061. Thus, during the year under review, the number on the rolls with permanent or potentially permanent status was reduced by 93.

Retention Preference in Reduction in Force.—Experience with the reduction in force early in the fiscal year stressed certain disadvantages in the application of policy established in General Order 1508 of August 14, 1952, and resulted in a new statement of policy in General Order 1582, issued on March 15, 1955. The earlier policy provided that tenure rights of employees were to be based primarily on four categories of status in the Library, in the following order of priority: (1) permanent status, (2) probational status, (3) indefinite status, and (4) temporary status. The new policy continues to give staff members having permanent status a retention preference superior to that held by members of the staff with probational or indefinite status and describes the factors for determining the order of retention preference of employees with permanent, probational, or indefinite status: (1) total length of service in the Library (including intervening military service after appointment in the Library), (2) character of service as evidenced by, but not necessarily limited to, performance ratings, and (3) general fitness to perform duties of the position to which the staff member may be assigned. The revised policy provides that members of the staff having temporary status shall have no retention preference.

Classification.—The Civil Service Commission conducted a post-audit of the classification of positions in the Library in July and August 1954, the first such survey of the Library undertaken since passage of the Classification Act of 1949. The Commission's report was gratifying in its approval of the Library's conduct of its job-classification program and proposed that the Library arrange for a classification review every 18 months. Several of the Commission's recommendations in regard to specific positions were put into effect by the end of the fiscal year.

The Library's Classification Section made surveys, among others, of the Card Division, the administrative office of the Buildings and Grounds Division, the Loan Division, the Science Division, the Division for the Blind, parts of the Music Division, and the Air Information and Air Research Divisions. The 615 actions handled by the Classification Section included 282 new positions not previously allocated, 77 reallocations, 154 position redescriptions without reallocation, and 45 reviews of earlier allocations. The Section completed the transfer of positions, principally guards and messengers, from the Crafts, Protective, and Custodial (CPC) schedule to the General Schedule (GS) as required by Public Law 763, 83d Congress, 2d sess., and accomplished the major part of the preparation for converting CPC manual-labor positions to the local prevailing-wage schedule as required by the same law.

Early in the spring of 1955 the Civil Service Commission issued a tentative revision of the classification standards for librarians' positions on which work had been in progress at the Commission for several months and with which the Library of Congress and library associations had had some advisory connection. The draft revision was felt to be wanting in various respects and an ad hoc committee of librarians and classification officers was organized to re-describe the standards. By the end of the fiscal year, this group of approximately 50 persons in the Federal service was approaching the end of its study and the preparation of its recommendations to be submitted to the Commission. Eugene Powell, the Library's Classification Officer, served as head of the project and two of the Library's classifiers worked with the group.

Performance Ratings.—On July 26, 1954, General Order No. 1559 launched a new performance rating plan that reduced the administrative and clerical costs characteristic of the method in use since December 1950. The plan is based upon provisions of the Performance Rating Act of 1950 (Public Law No. 873, 81st Congress, 2d sess.), which applies specifically to the Library of Congress among other Federal agencies, and upon regulations of the Civil Service Commission, which approved the Library's plan. Ratings under the new procedure were first given on October 1, 1954. While retaining the "Outstanding," "Satisfactory," and "Unsatisfactory" adjective ratings hitherto used, the new plan abandoned the listing of individual tasks and related standards, which in many instances required the rating of a single staff member on dozens of elements, and substituted four categories—"Does not meet requirements," "Acceptable but needs improvement," "Fully adequate," and "Substantially exceeds requirements"—and three rating elements—"Quality of work," "Quantity of work," and "Personal characteristics essential to the work."

Employee Relations.—For the third consecutive year no grievances or appeals were brought before appeals board. Potential appeals from administrative actions or performance ratings were adjusted by the Employee Relations Section in consultation with the staff members and Library officers concerned.

Budget, Finance, and Accounting

Appropriations for the fiscal year 1955 totaled $9,399,636 as compared to $9,459,293 in the preceding year. This over-all decrease of $59,657 was far greater in terms of employment, however, than the figure indicates, because the appropriation for the Distribution of Catalog Cards was increased by $67,200, the appropriation for the purchase of books for the Supreme Court was increased by $2,500, and the appropriations for Salaries and Expenses—Library of Congress, Salaries and Expenses—Copyright Office, and Salaries and Expenses—Legislative Reference Service made no provisions for meeting the costs of mandatory ingrade increases for the existing staff, for the cost of penalty mail, or for increased operating costs in a number of activities. In the three last-mentioned appropriations the total effective reduction was more than $275,000, and the adjustment to the lower base was accomplished by a net reduction of 41 positions and a drastic shrinking of allotments for non-personal services. Legislation on appropriations and on other matters directly affecting the Library during fiscal 1955 is summarized in appendix XIII.

The appropriations to the Architect of the Capitol for structural and mechanical care of the Library buildings and grounds and for furniture and furnishings for the Library were $400,000 and $50,000, respectively, the former sum falling $50,000 under the fiscal 1954 appropriation, the latter remaining unchanged. The $400,000 included $21,000 of the $85,000 requested for book-stack equipment for the Annex.

A total of $14,491,751 was available for obligation, of which $9,612,708 represented direct appropriations to the Library, $3,221,008 was transferred from other Government agencies, and $1,658,035 came from gift and trust funds. Obligations incurred amounted to $13,689,457 and expenditures totaled $13,461,093. Of the $802,294 remaining unobligated at the close of the fiscal year, $769,116 remained available for obligation in fiscal year 1956. Miscellaneous receipts deposited in the Treasury amounted to $2,056,493, consisting of $1,168,361 from the sale of printed catalog cards and technical publications, $882,618 from copyright registration fees, including some received late in the previous fiscal year, and $5,514 from other sources. Other financial statistics are given in appendix XIV.

Along with the necessity of operating under reduced appropriations, the Library was faced with increased costs during the year. They included ingrade increases, reallocations (including reallocations of GS-15 positions to GS-16, principally in the Legislative Reference Service), Federal Employees Group Life Insurance, conversions from the Crafts, Protective, and Custodial scale to the General Schedule, new overtime rates, longevity increases, penalty mail costs, increased telephone rates, increased binding costs as a result of wage-board compensation increases at the Government Printing Office, replacement of outmoded machines in the Tabulating Office, Bureau of Engraving and Printing charges for armored truck service, and increased costs of loyalty and security investigations.

Payment of one claim under the Torts Claims Act was made in the amount of $966.55 on August 13, 1954, to Mr. and Mrs. John W. Ruch, parents of John R. Ruch, a 4-year-old child, who suffered an injury in the Library on March 25, 1954.

A summary of the annual report of the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board constitutes appendix I of this Report. Appendix XIV, containing financial statistics, shows the investments held by the Board and the activity of each fund.

Buildings and Grounds

The Main Building, first occupied in November 1897, is, in many respects, in an excellent state of preservation but in others deterioration is obvious. Restoration beyond the ordinary annual painting and repair program will require increasing attention and extra funds over a period of years. The mosaic ceilings and the mosaic and marble floors need repair; and there are cracks in the murals and encrustations of grime on the statuary and decorative devices in the hard-to-reach upper levels and the dome of the Main Reading Room. In some quarters, the 1897-vintage furnishings are approaching dilapidation. Externally, of course, the building presents its original appearance of massiveness, the more so because of the patina of a half-century, but it is seldom entirely impenetrable to wind-driven rain. During Hurricane Hazel on October 15, 1954, a storm which did not bring the worst experience with leaks during recent years, several dozen buckets had to be used to catch water in both the book-stack areas and the upper halls and rooms. Reroofing and repointing the masonry must therefore be given priority. Plumbing renovation is required and numerous other details demand attention.

These conditions, added to reductions in staff, augmented the housekeeping problems and added to administrative difficulties in attempting to maintain suitable facilities and to care for the collections. Nevertheless, an unusually large number of books were cleaned, some 2,000,000 volumes in nearly 13,300 sections.

Illumination in the Main Building and the surrounding grounds is antiquated and must remain so until alternating current and new wiring and equipment are provided; this is not expected to be available until 3 or 4 years from now. The conversion to 60-cycle alternating current of the equipment in the Annex, however, was well underway by the close of the fiscal year. Started in October of 1954, this three-quarters-of-a-million-dollar project should be completed by March or April of 1956. It will improve service in the Annex and will, in particular, allow improvement in the air-conditioning system.

The Architect of the Capitol, who is responsible for negotiating contracts concerning the Library buildings and grounds, late in the year awarded a contract for the manufacture of hangers for stack shelving in the Annex, the first to be acquired since that building was occupied in 1939. Since then the manufacture of the cast-iron type of hanger with which the Library's stacks have been equipped since 1897 has been discontinued and only after much delay and investigation was it possible to proceed on the basis of a contract calling for the preparation of new molding patterns. Installation is expected to be completed within the first 6 months of fiscal 1956.

The Architect also awarded a contract for the installation in fiscal 1956 of new, or modernized, safety devices on all passenger elevators in the two buildings. Officials of the U. S. Public Health Service and of the Bureau of Labor Standards in the Department of Labor conducted a health and safety survey of the buildings and reported on conditions needing correction. Attention is being given to this matter.

Photoduplication Service

The Photoduplication Service, a self-sustaining activity that operates on a revolving-fund basis, supplied photoprints of 93,750 items of the 117,280 items requested and searched, received $399,698.63 as compared with $375,560 last year, and disbursed $411,337.33, ending the year with an unobligated balance of $231,188.81. Comparative statistics on orders received and photoduplicates produced are given in appendix VII.

Continued improvements are being made in methods and equipment to insure the high quality of photoduplication work. During the year stainless-steel tables and cabinets were installed in the chemical mixing room, and stainless-steel sinks replaced soapstone units. A second Kodagraph Enlarger, Model B (MEB), was obtained for use in making enlargement prints from 16 mm. and 35 mm. film. In keeping with the accepted practice of the American Standards Association, the Photoduplication Service adopted, on February 1, 1955, several changes in its procedure for "positioning" microfilm frames and is now following the new procedure except in cases where the customer expresses a preference for variant positions.

Declassified Publication Board Reports transferred to the Library of Congress by the Office of Technical Services of the Department of Commerce, now numbering 113,567 titles, are serviced by the Photoduplication Service. During the year, 3,533 additional scientific and technical reports were received; 26,100 photocopies of reports, for which $96,296.53 was received, were made on order; and, in addition, 1,207 reports were made available for the use of 169 readers.

A major project of the Photoduplication Service was the cooperative effort to film the several important Slavic-language newspapers that were recommended for microfilming by the Joint Committee on Slavic Studies of the American Council of Learned Societies and the Social Science Research Council. Supported by a grant of funds from the Rockefeller Foundation, the Library's Slavic and East European Division compiled a record of holdings of these newspapers in selected libraries; a descriptive brochure was sent to 125 institutions throughout the world thought to be interested in acquiring film copies through the project. Response has been such that substantially all titles on the list could be scheduled for microfilming with reasonable assurance that the cost of materials would be met. The microfilming of the Library's files of these Slavic-language newspapers and the purchase from other institutions of microfilm copies of editions needed to fill out the Library's files were completed in May 1955.

CHAPTER VI

The Copyright Office

Report to the Librarian of Congress by the Register of Copyrights

SIR: The work of the Copyright Office for the fiscal year ending ending June 30, 1955, is summarized as follows:

Volume of Business

Earned revenue during the fiscal year 1955 was the largest in the history of the Copyright Office, surpassing the previous high reached in the fiscal year 1954. Gross receipts amounted to $941,365.75, of which $715.06 proved to be uncollectible, and $42,081.81 was refunded. Applied fees transferred into the Treasury of the United States were $881,017, an increase of $9,553.50 over fiscal 1954.

The steady increase in copyright registrations, which began in fiscal 1951, continued in fiscal 1955. Registrations rose from 222,665 in fiscal 1954 to 224,732 in fiscal 1955, an increase of 1 percent. Of these registrations, 13,257 were for foreign works deposited under Public Law 84 of the 81st Congress, an increase of 1,188 or 10 percent over last year.

There was also an increase in other activities such as the recording of assignments and other documents and of notices of use, the furnishing of certifications, and the supplying of copyright registration data.

Three of the classes accounted for 76 percent of all registrations made. Comparative totals of these classes for the fiscal years 1954 and 1955 follow:

Class	1954	1955
A (Books).....	51, 763	54, 414
B (Periodicals).....	60, 667	59, 448
E (Music).....	58, 213	57, 527
Totals.....	170, 643	171, 389

The Copyright Office turned over to the Library of Congress for addition to its collections a total of 216,445 items from copyright deposits, an increase of nearly 4 percent over 1954.

The activities of the Reference Division in seeking compliance with the copyright law continued to result in a marked increase in the number of registrations and in the value of materials obtained. These efforts were responsible for 14,262 registrations for which $61,440 in fees and deposits valued at $98,267 were received. In 1954 the compliance activity resulted in 11,887 registrations, with fees and value of deposits amounting to $50,000 and $61,106, respectively.

Universal Copyright Convention

The history of the development of the Universal Copyright Convention has been recorded in the annual reports of the Register of Copyrights for the last several years. During the past year the final achievement of the years of preparatory work was in sight. On June 16, 1955, there was deposited with UNESCO in Paris the instrument of adherence by the twelfth country, which, under the terms of the Convention, will bring the Convention into force on September 16, 1955. The United States will then become, for the first time, a member of a system of international copyright protection that may achieve virtually worldwide adoption.

The 12 countries among which the Convention will become effective on September 16, 1955, listed in the order of their ratification or accession, are Andorra, Cambodia, Pakistan, Laos, Haiti, Spain, United States of America, Costa Rica, Chile, Israel, German Federal Republic, and the Principality of Monaco. In depositing its ratification, the United States, pursuant to Article XIII of the Convention, gave notice that the Convention will also be applicable to the territories of Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and the Panama Canal Zone. Meanwhile, at the close of the fiscal year, a number of other countries were in the process of considering legislation or of completing administrative action necessary for adherence to the Convention, and additional adherences during the ensuing months were anticipated.

On the same date that the Convention goes into effect, September 16, 1955, Public Law 743, approved August 31, 1954, will also become effective. This act will modify the United States copyright law (Title 17, United States Code) in the particulars necessary to comply with the Convention.

Under the provisions of the Convention and the new law, the works of nationals of countries adhering to the Convention and works first published in such countries (except works by authors who are nationals or domiciliaries of the United States and any works first published in this country) will be given copyright protection in the United States, if all published copies bear the symbol © together with the name of the copyright claimant and the year date of first publication placed in such manner and location as to give reasonable notice of claim of copyright. For works protected under the Convention, it will not be necessary to make deposit or registration in the Copyright Office except as a prerequisite to the institution of an infringement action in the United States courts.

United States authors will obtain copyright protection in all the other member countries of the Convention if, in respect to those countries that would otherwise require formalities such as deposit or registration, all published copies of their works bear the specified form of notice.

Public Law 743 will also make two changes in our domestic law regarding works by United States authors. It will permit the use of the symbol © in the copyright notice for all classes of works.

And it will extend to works of United States authorship the privilege heretofore accorded to works of foreign authorship, of importing, after ad interim registration, up to 1,500 copies of English-language books and periodicals first published abroad.

Administrative Developments

Compilation of the Copyright Laws of the World.—The Copyright Office continued its cooperation with UNESCO and the United Kingdom Board of Trade in the important and valuable undertaking by UNESCO to publish an English-language compilation of the copyright laws and related decrees, orders, regulations, etc., together with the international copyright convention and treaties, of all the countries of the world. The Copyright Office is contributing translations of the laws and related material for 20 countries and is assisting in the editorial work on the entire compilation. This compilation is expected to be completed and published in looseleaf form during the next fiscal year. It is to be kept current thereafter by the periodic issue of looseleaf supplements.

"Related Rights."—A draft international convention known as the "Rome Draft Convention," prepared under the auspices of the Berne Bureau (the Bureau of the International Union for the Protection of Literary and Artistic Works) with the participation of the International Labor Organization, is concerned with the problems of the so-called "related rights" (droits voisins), which would afford protection for performing artists, phonograph record manufacturers, and radio and television broadcasters. These problems have been the subject of discussion in many countries over an extended period. The Copyright Office has been analyzing the problems involved in this matter as they relate to copyright and has arranged to cooperate in legal and factual studies as an essential prerequisite to further development of pending proposals in the field of "related rights." In collaboration with other departments of the Federal Government, the Copyright Office has participated in the organization of a panel or representatives of industries and groups in the United States most directly concerned with these problems, and two meetings of the panel, under the chairmanship of the Register of Copyrights, have been held. The Register also attended meetings held in Berne and Geneva in March 1955 at which the program for further development of a convention was considered.

Design Protection.—The Supreme Court decision in the case of Mazer v. Stein, 347 U. S. 201, discussed in last year's annual report, gave new impetus to the movement among bar and industry groups to develop legislative proposals for the protection of nonfunctional useful designs. The interested bar groups have organized a Design Coordinating Committee to study the problem. The Copyright Office has undertaken to collaborate with the Patent Office and the Coordinating Committee in pursuing this study in view of the overlap between the areas of the copyright and patent laws and the broad field of design. A comprehensive bibliography on the subject of design protection was prepared in the Copyright Office by Miss Barbara Ringer, Head of the Renewal and Assignment Section of the Examining Division, assisted by Mrs. K. M. Mott of that Section. It was distributed among the interested groups.

Sale of Records as Publication of Recorded Work.—The dicta in two recent court decisions, Mills Music, Inc. v. Cromwell Music, Inc., 126 F. Supp. 54 (S. D. N. Y. 1954), and Biltmore Music Corp. et al. v. Robert W. Kittinger (S. D. Calif., Oct. 15, 1954), following a dictum in the 1950 decision in Shapiro-Bernstein & Co., Inc. v. Miracle Record Co., Inc., 91 F. Supp. 473, have raised a problem of far-reaching import. In these decisions, reviewed more fully later in this report, the judges made statements to the effect that the sale of phonograph records of a musical composition would constitute publication of the composition. Heretofore, the contrary has generally been assumed by the bar and the trade, and the acceptance of the dicta in these decisions might jeopardize rights which have been thought to exist in a great many musical compositions. In an effort to settle this question, members of the copyright bar have formed an ad hoc committee to develop proposals for resolving the legal issues on this point. The Copyright Office has given assistance to this committee by analyzing the legal problems involved and has been kept informed of the committee's deliberations.

Copyright Cataloging.—After an intensive review by the Cataloging Division of its rules for the cataloging and indexing of copyright registrations, a new code of rules was drafted and put into effect as of January 1, 1955, to coincide with the start of a new 5-year segment of the Office's card catalog. Meanwhile, a comprehensive study of the content of the catalog entries continues with the view of simplifying the entries insofar as is consistent with the requirements for adequate records and indexes of copyright registrations.

Subject Correspondence Control.—Another study begun during the year is designed to develop a system for the more effective control by subject of the Office's correspondence (letters, memoranda, reports, etc.) of subject significance. As a result of this study, a plan for the establishment and maintenance of a subject filing system has been proposed and is expected to be put into operation during the next fiscal year.

Assignment Title Index.—A project to fill a gap in the title index to the assignment records of the Office for the period 1927 through 1937, when no such title index was made, neared completion at the close of the fiscal year. Preparation of the index cards, numbering about 330,000, had been completed and the remaining task of integrating them into the permanent card file was under way. The closing of this gap will facilitate searches of the assignment records by the Office staff and the public.

Bulletins of Court Decisions.—Bulletin No. 29, the latest in the series of volumes containing court decisions in copyright cases, was compiled and sent to the printer before the end of the fiscal year. The new volume, covering the court decisions during 1953 and 1954, is expected to come off the press in the fall of 1955. The Office has begun the preparation of a cumulative index of the court decisions published in Bulletins 17 through 29, covering the years 1909 through 1954.

Revision of Forms and Circulars.—With the Universal Copyright Convention and the amendments of the copyright law by Public Law 743 becoming effective on September 16, 1955, the Office began the important task of revising its application forms and its information circulars to reflect the changes to be brought about by the Convention and the amendments to the law. In preparing the new forms and circulars, other revisions that experience has shown to be desirable will be made.

Legal Developments

International relations.—In addition to the Universal Copyright Convention, two other important developments in our international copyright relations occurred during the past fiscal year. On October 21, 1954, diplomatic notes were exchanged between the United States and India confirming the continuation after August 15, 1947, of the reciprocal copyright relations that had been established through the United Kingdom before India became independent; and a Proclamation was issued by the President affirming that citizens of India were entitled to the benefits of Title 17 of the United States Code, including mechanical musical rights, after August 15, 1947, as well as before that date. The second noteworthy event in our international relations was the deposit by Chile, on March 14, 1955, of its ratification of the Buenos Aires Convention of 1910, whereby Chile joined with 14 other Latin American countries and the United States as members of that Convention.

Legislation.—Although there were an unusually large number of copyright bills introduced in Congress during the past year only one bill amending the copyright law was enacted. This was Public Law 743, which has already been discussed in connection with the Universal Copyright Convention.

H. R. 5876, introduced by Congressman Emanuel Celler on April 27, 1955, in response to a communication from the Librarian of Congress to the Speaker of the House, would authorize the Register of Copyrights to accept the deposit of photographs in lieu of actual copies of certain classes of works where the deposit of copies is impractical because of their "size, weight, fragility or monetary value." This bill passed the House of Representatives on June 7, 1955, and awaits consideration by the Senate at the next session of the 84th Congress.

S. 125, introduced by Senator Everett M. Dirksen on January 6, 1955, would have directed the Register to accept an application for registration of a claim to copyright by the State of Illinois for an emblematic design. The Library of Congress suggested that the protection desired by the State of Illinois could be given more appropriately and more effectively by legislation along the lines of existing statutes protecting emblems of the Red Cross, the Boy Scouts, etc. The Senate Judiciary Committee adopted this suggestion and a revised bill, giving the State of Illinois the exclusive right to use the emblem in interstate commerce, was passed by the Senate on July 30, 1955, and by the House on August 1, 1955, and was approved by the President on August 11, 1955, becoming Public Law 339.

A number of bills to eliminate the so-called "juke-box exemption" in Section 1 (c) of the copyright law, which provides that the rendition of music on coin-operated machines shall not be deemed a public performance for profit, were introduced during the past year: S. 590 by Senator Harley M. Kilgore and nine other Senators on January 21, 1955; H. R. 4316 by Representative Frank Thompson, Jr., on February 23, 1955; H. R. 6654 by Representative James C. Murray on June 5, 1955; H. R. 6855 by Representative Philip J.

Philbin on June 15, 1955; and H. R. 6890 by Representative James J. Delaney on June 16, 1955. No action was taken on any of these bills during the first session of the Congress.

The annual reports for the last 2 years made mention of a growing movement among the bar and trade groups concerned with copyright for a comprehensive revision of the copyright law. A bill introduced by Representative Frank Thompson, Jr., on January 20, 1955, H. R. 2677, would provide for the appointment of a Commission composed of 7 Presidential appointees and 6 Members of Congress to conduct studies and make recommendations for revision of the copyright law. A similar bill, H. R. 5366, was introduced by Representative Charles C. Diggs, Jr., on March 30, 1955. Senator William Langer also introduced a similar bill, S. 1254, on March 2, 1955, but a few days later he asked for and received unanimous consent of the Senate for indefinite postponement of consideration of his bill. No action was taken on the Thompson or Diggs Bills. Meanwhile, the American Bar Association's Committee on Program for Revision of the Copyright Law considered the problem and issued a report recommending that studies be conducted by the Copyright Office with the assistance of an advisory committee of specialists and representatives of the various groups and industries concerned to be appointed by the Librarian of Congress. These studies would serve as the basis for the development of proposals for consideration by the Congressional committees in charge of copyright matters. In the Legislative Appropriation Act, 1956, Public Law 242, Congress approved a sum of $20,000 to enable the Copyright Office to initiate studies as a part of a 3-year program for the general revision of the copyright law.

Several bills were introduced for the purpose of divesting all German and Japanese copyrights previously vested by the Alien Property Custodian and the Attorney General, namely: S. 2227 by Senator Kilgore on June 14, 1955, H. R. 6730 by Representative J. Percy Priest on June 8, 1955, and H. R. 6970 by Representative Albert H. Bosch on June 23, 1955. These bills could automatically return all vested copyrights, with a few stated exceptions, to "the persons entitled thereto." The bills would also provide for the payment of claims, within certain limits, for sums received by the Government for the use of these copyrights while vested. No action was taken on any of these bills during the first session of the 84th Congress.

Two bills by Representative Kenneth B. Keating on which no action was taken in the 83d Congress were reintroduced by him in the 84th Congress on January 5, 1955. The first, H. R. 781, would provide for a statute of limitations on civil actions under the copyright law, and the second, H. R. 782, would revise the provisions of the present copyright law regarding the position of the copyright notice, one of the important problems to be considered in the general revision of the law. No action on either of these bills was taken.

A bill, H. R. 6716, to provide for the institution of infringement actions or the filing of claims against the United States for copyright infringement was introduced by Representative Shepard J. Crumpacker on June 8, 1955. In his statement on the floor, introducing this bill, Representative Crumpacker pointed out that there is no existing remedy for copyright proprietors, as there is for holders of patents, when the Government infringes their works. No action was taken on this bill.

S. 1954 by Senator Henry M. Jackson and H. R. 6254 by Representative Clair Engle were introduced on May 11 and 16, 1955, respectively, for the purpose of amending the organic act of Guam. These identical bills contain a provision extending the copyright laws of the United States to this territory. No action was taken on either bill.

H. R. 7300, introduced by Representative Frank Ikard on July 13, 1955, shortly after the close of the fiscal year, proposed an amendment to the Internal Revenue Code to afford tax relief with respect to sums recovered in infringement proceedings. As originally introduced, this bill related to both copyright and patent infringements, but as enacted—Public Law 366, approved August 11, 1955—it related only to patent infringements.

Litigation.—As previously indicated, two court decisions during the past year have created doubts as to the validity of the assumption upon which the bar and trade have acted for many years, that the sale of phonograph records of a musical composition does not constitute publication of the composition. In a 1950 decision in the case of Shapiro-Bernstein & Co., Inc. v. Miracle Record Co., Inc., 91 F. Supp. 473 (N. D. 111), Judge Igoe, in a dictum that was then unique, stated the view that the sale of phonograph records of an uncopied musical composition was such a publication of the composition as would terminate the common law literary property rights of the composer.

The first of the 2 recent decisions bearing on this question, Mills Music, Inc. v. Cromwell Music, Inc., 126 F. Supp. 54 (S. D. N. Y. 1954), involved the song "Tzena Tzena," which had been composed, performed, and recorded in Israel but, as the court found, had never been published. The Israeli recording company, contrary to the composer's wishes, arranged to have records of the song made and sold in the United States. The court held that the subsequent making and sale of records in the United States by the defendant company infringed the common law rights of the composer's assignee since the records previously sold had not been authorized by the composer. The court added, however, the dictum that if the composer had authorized the manufacture and sale of phonograph records in this country, their sale "would have constituted a publication of his composition * * * capable of destroying his common law copyright." The court added further that a statutory copyright, if previously obtained, would not be affected by the manufacture and sale of records.

The second case relating to this question is an unreported decision of October 15, 1954, by the Federal District Court for the Southern District of California in Biltmore Music Corp., et al. v. Kittinger. The facts in this case are complicated but in essence they appear to be as follows: A musician, without authorization by the copyright owner of a musical composition, made his own organ arrangement which he recorded for the defendant record manufacturer. He later recorded the same arrangement for another record manufacturer and assigned his rights in the arrangement to this second record manufacturer, who also obtained a license to use the original composition. The second record manufacturer assigned all his rights to the plaintiff, who registered a claim of statutory copyright in the arrangement and filed a notice of use. The plaintiff then sought to restrain the defendant from making and selling further copies of its records. In dismissing the complaint, the court held, without specifying the bases for its conclusions, that (1) the failure of the copyright owners of the original composition to file a notice of use precluded any recovery from the defendant for his recording of that composition; (2) the composer of the arrangement had authorized the defendant to make and sell records of his arrangement; (3) the failure of the plaintiff's assignor to file a notice of use in respect of the arrangement precluded any recovery from the defendant for its recording of the arrangement; and (4) since the arrangement had been published (presumably by the sale of records) before copyright was secured, the claim of copyright subsequently registered was invalid.

Another concept of long standing was shaken by the decision of the Federal Court of Appeals for the Second Circuit in Shapiro, Bernstein and Co., Inc. v. Jerry Vogel, 221 F. 2d 569, modified in 223 F. 2d 252. It has generally been thought that collaboration between the composer and lyricist was necessary to constitute a joint work of music and words. In this case the musical composition, "Twelfth Street Rag," had been composed by Euday L. Bowman as instrumental music alone. He assigned all his rights to a publisher who, several years later, arranged to have James S. Sumner write lyrics to accompany the music. The opinion of the district court (115 F. Supp. 754), reviewed in last year's annual report, held that the music and lyrics together constituted a composite work, not a joint work, with the consequence that the owner of renewal copyright in the lyrics was not entitled to use the music together with the lyrics. The circuit court, overruling the district court, held that the music and lyrics together constituted a joint work, so that the separate owners of the renewal copyrights were each entitled to use the music and lyrics together, with an accounting between the two copyright owners for such use of the joint work.

Capitol Records, Inc. v. Mercury Records, Inc., 221 F. 2d 657 (2d Cir. 1955), is a case of considerable interest with respect to the scope of copyright under the Constitution. The plaintiff had acquired from a German recorder, to whom the performing artist had assigned his rights, the exclusive right to make and sell in the United States phonograph records of a performance of public domain music. The plaintiff, having made and sold such records, sought to enjoin the defendant from making and selling copies of the same recording. The three circuit court judges agreed (1) that the recorded performance of a performing artist is a "writing" of an "author" under the Constitution and could therefore be given protection by Congress under the copyright law; (2) that Congress has not provided for the protection of performing artists in the copyright law; and (3) that performing artists have literary property rights in their performances under the common law. The majority of the Court held further, with Judge Learned Hand dissenting, that the sale of records of the performance did not terminate the performer's common law right, acquired by the plaintiff, to restrain the making and sale of unauthorized copies of the recording.

A novel and interesting case relating to the perplexing doctrine of "fair use" was Loew's Inc. v. Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., 131 F. Supp. 165 (S. D. Calif. 1955). This case involved an infringement action by the copyright proprietor of the motion picture "Gaslight" against the broadcaster and performer of a radio and television parody of the motion picture. The court granted an injunction against the making of a film of the parody for television broadcast, holding that parody of the entire motion picture was not "fair use" of the copyrighted work. The court considered that the doctrine of "fair use" would be more liberally construed where the field of learning is concerned than where commercial exploitation and gain is involved.

In last year's annual report, reference was made to the case of E. B. Marks Music Corp. v. Continental Record Co., 120 F. Supp. 275 (S. D. N. Y. 1954), in which the district court held that a musical composition copyrighted in 1902 did not, by virtue of renewal in 1929 and 1930, obtain the mechanical reproduction rights provided for in the law of 1909, for the reason that such rights were in the public domain at the time of the first publication of the composition. This opinion was upheld by the court of appeals in 222 F. 2d 488 (2d Cir. 1955). A petition for writ of certiorari was filed with the United States Supreme Court by the plaintiff on July 7, 1955.

A case of copyright interest in which a petition for writ of certiorari was rejected by the Supreme Court during the past year is Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc. v. Columbia Broadcasting System, Inc., et al., 206 F. 2d 945 (9th Cir. 1954), cert. denied, 348 U. S. 971 (March 28, 1955). The dispute arose out of the contention by the plaintiff motion picture company that its acquisition of rights in the defendant Dashiell Hammett's copyrighted book The Maltese Falcon included the exclusive right to the use of the principal character under the name of Sam Spade. Defendant author had subsequently written a series of detective stories for broadcast which utilized the same principal character under the same name. The court dismissed the complaint, holding that, in the absence of a specific provision in the contract, his sale of the author's story did not preclude his using the same character and name in his later works.

Miller v. Goody, 125 F. Supp. 348 (S. D. N. Y. 1954), emphasized the importance of an often-ignored provision of Section 101 (e) of the copyright law. After the plaintiff had permitted others to make phonograph records of his musical composition, the defendant recording company made records of that composition but failed to file a notice of intention to use as provided in Section 101 (e) and failed to pay the statutory royalty fixed in Section

1 (e). The court, in accordance with Section 101 (e), awarded damages in the sum of three times the statutory royalty. The court reached the novel conclusion that since the defendant could still file the notice of intention to use and pay the statutory royalty for its records to be made thereafter, its matrices were not to be destroyed but were to be impounded until the damages had been paid and the notice had been filed.

Appendix I. Library of Congress Trust Fund Board

SUMMARY OF REPORT FOR THE FISCAL YEAR 1955

Membership. Mr. Adolph C. Miller, a member of the Trust Fund Board since 1936, died on February 11, 1953. Appointed to fill his term was Mr. Benjamin M. McKelway, who was designated by the President to serve as a member of the Board for the period May 25, 1955 to March 8, 1958. Mrs. Agnes E. Meyer was re-appointed on March 9, 1955 to a five-year term. Members of the Board ex officio during fiscal 1955 were:

George M. Humphrey, Secretary of the Treasury, Chairman (represented by Mr. Marion B. Folsom, Under Secretary of the Treasury)

L. Quincy Mumford, Librarian of Congress, Secretary

Omar Burleson, Chairman, Joint Committee on the Library (from February 18, 1955 until August 2, 1955, date of Congress' adjournment)

Gifts and Bequests Accepted during Fiscal 1955.

- a. Additional gifts totaling $100,000 from Mrs. Gertrude Clarke Whittall to support "activities of the Library in developing the appreciation and understanding of good literature" (in two gifts, $95,003.67 and $4,996.33 respectively)—December 1954.
- b. Trust property from the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Estate (securities in the approximate value of $625,000) to continue the music activities for which the income from this trust has been available to the Library in the past—May 1955.
- c. Bequest of Mr. Nymphus Corridon Hanks of Heber City, Utah, for the residue of this estate (value estimated at $7,500; largely represented by his home) for the benefit of the Library of Congress in furthering work for the benefit of the blind—March 1955.

Meetings of the Board. The 33d meeting of the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board was held in the Office of the Librarian of Congress on Friday, July 15, 1955. At this session the Board confirmed the poll votes taken by mail since its last meeting on January 13, 1953, adopted the statement of rules and regulations of the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board as drafted, and approved annual reports of operations under the Board for the fiscal years 1953 and 1954.

The following resolution was adopted by a rising vote:

"RESOLVED, that the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board record the great loss to the world of music in general and to the Library of Congress in particular in the death on November 4, 1953 of Mrs. Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge, whose unsurpassed generosity and devotion to the art of music made her the first donor to the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board in 1925, when her gifts made possible the establishment of the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation in the Library and the construction of an auditorium for the performance of the concerts. The interest and generosity of this great benefactor developed the Library of Congress into a world center of chamber music, encouraged the composition and performance of many outstanding modern musical works, and greatly contributed to the appreciation and enjoyment of chamber music in this country and to the encouragement of the composers and performers who make it possible. Mrs. Coolidge's active participation in the operations of the Foundation and her additional gifts to the Library of thousands of musical manuscripts have contributed to the development of a memorial that will be an enduring tribute to her and to the art of music."

Summary of Activities, Fiscal 1955, Supported by Funds Held by the Board.

Appendix XI. Decisions of the Comptroller General on Questions Raised by the Library of Congress, Fiscal Year 1955

Date	Decision No	Summary
Nov 23, 1954	B-119398	(1) Decided that in accordance with Section 703, of the Classification Act of 1949, 63 Stat 968 as amended by Section 120 of the Act of September 1, 1954, 68 Stat 1105 and with paragraph 25 52 (d), Z1-316 01, Federal Personnel Manual, an employee at the maximum scheduled rate of his grade placed in a leave without pay status will not constitute a break in his three years of continuous service in a Classification Act position. However, he will not be entitled to count as service towards the longevity increase the entire time, but he may receive credit towards a longevity step-increase for not exceeding six workweeks of that period. Based on decisions B-119188, dated September 1, 1954.
Dec 30, 1954	B-121220	(2) Decided that an employee's temporary employment at a higher rate, while on leave without pay, does not constitute an equivalent increase in salary for periodic step increase purposes. See 30 Comp Gen 82, 25 Comp Gen 178, 31 Comp Gen 149. Decided that Comptroller General's decision B-35313 applied to the Library of Congress. However, in instances of small shipments of books to the Library, where in light of the Library's experiences, the freight charged appears small and to be reasonable and a bill for reimbursement of prepaid freight is not furnished with the invoice, the General Accounting Office will not insist as part of its audit requirements upon such bills being attached to the voucher, where the amount claimed as freight charges is less than $25.
Mar 30, 1954	B-122747	Decided since Public Law 733, 81st Congress, 64 Stat 476 specifically included only certain enumerated departments and agencies of the executive branch of the Government, the Library of Congress and agencies under the legislative branch did not fall within the scope of that law. Consequently, it was concluded that Public Law 733 does not vest in the Librarian authority to allow retroactive compensation to employees of the Library of Congress who are restored to duty following suspension or separation from service for reason of national security.

Appendix XIII. Legislation specifically relating to the Library of Congress, Fiscal Year 1955

Public Law 470 (83d Congress), approved July 2, 1954, makes appropriations for the Legislative Branch for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1955

Under this act, funds were provided for the Library of Congress, as follows

Salaries and expenses
Library proper	$4,717,636
Copyright Office	1,100,000
Legislative Reference Service	875,000
Distribution of Catalog Cards	1,332,000
Increase of the Library (general) available through fiscal 1956	260,000
Increase of the Law Library available through fiscal 1956	90,000
Books for the Supreme Court	25,000
Books for the Blind	1,000,000

Public Law 763 (83d Congress), approved September 1, 1954, provides "fringe" benefits for employees of the Federal Government.

Specifically defines the term "department" under the Incentive Awards title of the Act, to include the Library of Congress. This title authorizes the payment of cash awards up to $5,000, or up to $25,000 in exceptional and unusually outstanding cases, to employees who by superior accomplishments, suggestions, etc., contribute to the efficiency and improvement of Government operations.

Public Law 94 (84th Congress), approved June 28, 1955, entitled "Federal Employees Salary Increase Act of 1955," adjusts the rates of basic compensation of certain officers and employees of the Federal Government.

Stipulates that the number of positions of senior specialists in the Legislative Reference Service of the Library of Congress, allocated to grades 16, 17, and 18, shall be in addition to the number authorized and controlled by the Civil Service Commission.

Public Law 723 (84th Congress), approved June 30, 1955, provides for increased pay costs for the fiscal year 1955.

Designates the Librarian of Congress as an officer who shall have administrative control of appropriations, funds, or authorizations available within the Library for transfers, etc., to meet cost of pay increases.

¹ Established by Public Law 541, 68th Congress, March 3, 1925² In addition to this fund, Mrs. Coolidge had assigned to the Library in the interest of its Music Division, the entire net income of approximately $17,500 a year, from a fund held in trust by the Northern Trust Company of Chicago for her benefit under the terms of her father's will. Mrs. Coolidge died on November 4, 1953, and under her will the above fund will be turned over to the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board as an addition to the Elizabeth Sprague Coolidge Foundation now held by the Board.³ Under a provision made by Mr. Huntington in November 1936 the Library of Congress Trust Fund Board receives approximately $11,500 a year from investments held in trust by the Bank of New York for the equipment and maintenance of the Hispanic Room and for a chair of poetry of the English language.
